FOREWORD

It has been exactly a decade since the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives last published a history of the committee. Since that time the committee has been charged by the House with the responsibility for consideration of several matters of unprecedented importance to the American people and our system of government. While the most obvious example of the extraordinary issues which the Committee on the Judiciary has confronted in the past 10 years has been the investigation, during the 93rd Congress, of whether sufficient grounds existed to impeach President Richard M. Nixon, numerous other significant constitutional and statutory matters have also been successfully dealt with over this period. During the 93rd Congress, for example, the committee was called upon to investigate and report to the House on the nominations of Gerald Ford and Nelson Rockefeller to be Vice President, the first two times in our history that the 25th Amendment was utilized. During the 94th Congress, and again in the first session of the 97th Congress, the committee extended and strengthened the Voting Rights Act, generally acknowledged to be the most effective civil rights law ever enacted. Also during the 94th Congress, the committee passed the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, the most important antitrust legislation enacted since 1950.

In the 95th Congress, the Judiciary Committee was asked to take action relating to two proposed constitutional amendments. First, the committee favorably reported H.J. Res. 554, a resolution to amend the Constitution to provide for representation of the District of Columbia in Congress. Subsequently, the committee approved H.J. Res. 638, to extend the ratification period for the proposed Equal Rights Amendment. The 95th Congress also saw the Judiciary Committee pass the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, the first major revision of the bankruptcy laws enacted in 40 years.

Finally, during the 96th Congress, the Committee passed the Refugee Act of 1980, for the first time establishing a coherent and comprehensive statutory framework to guide our refugee policy. And the committee as well considered at length the recodification of our Federal criminal laws.

Given the nature of the issues for which the Committee on the Judiciary has been responsible in recent Congresses, and the length of time which has passed since the publication of the last comprehensive history, the Members of the committee believed it was important that an up-to-date study be prepared. It is our hope that this history, along with those previously published, will provide a more complete picture of the role of the committee in the legislative process and will contribute to a better understanding of how our democracy works.

An Introduction to the Judiciary Committee

The Judiciary Committee has been called the lawyer for the House of Representatives as a consequence of its jurisdiction over matters relating to the administration of justice in Federal courts, administrative bodies, and by law enforcement agencies, and to its infrequent, but important, role in most impeachment proceedings.

A standing Committee on the Judiciary was established by the House of Representatives on June 3, 1813 to consider legislation relating to judicial proceedings. Since then, the scope of the committee's concern has expanded to include not only civil and criminal judicial proceedings and Federal courts and judges, but also Federal statutes relating to bankruptcy, mutiny, espionage, counterfeiting, monopolistic practices, immigration, refugees, and international law, revision and codification of Federal law, and claims against the U.S. Government. The Judiciary Committee is responsible as well for legislation apportioning representation in the House, establishing the dates for the meetings of Congress, and regulating the attendance of Members and their acceptance of incompatible public offices. The committee is normally assigned legislation dealing with State and Federal boundary lines, and interstate compacts and agreements. Additionally, the Judiciary Committee has referred to it proposed constitutional amendments, legislation to insure and protect civil liberties, and measures relating to Presidential succession. Finally, the committee has jurisdiction over Federal prisons, and patent, copyright, and trademark matters.

In 1974, the House of Representatives voted to assign responsibility for measures relating to Federal holidays and celebrations, which for many years were referred to the Judiciary Committee, to the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service. In 1975, the House granted the Judiciary Committee responsibility for measures relating to Communist and other subversive activities affecting U.S. internal security.<sup>1</sup> In 1979, the Speaker of the House transferred the responsibility for identifying court proceedings and actions of vital interest to the Congress to the Judiciary Committee from the Select Committee on Congressional Operations.<sup>2</sup>

Because of the predominantly legal nature of the committee's work, it has been the custom, dating perhaps into the 19th century, that members of the committee have a legal background. A periodic check of committee membership from 1813 until the 80th Congress disclosed no member of the Committee on the Judiciary without legal training or experience, while an examination of its roster each year from the 80th Congress (1947-48) to the present revealed that no one without such credentials has been appointed to the committee.<sup>3</sup>

The legislative workload of the committee is heavy and, in recent years, about one-third of all measures introduced in the House have been referred to Judiciary for consideration. In 1974, a study by the House Select Committee on Committees reported that "the workload of the (Judiciary) Committee is the heaviest in the House by any of the usual measurements—number of bills assigned, number and length of hearings, number of bills reported, staff and amount of money spent."<sup>4</sup> Not surprisingly, its weighty agenda has frequently placed the committee in a central role in American politics, most notably during its consideration of impeachment charges against an incumbent President of the United States in 1974.

Committee Organization

On June 1, 1813, Mr. Jackson of Virginia moved to amend the Standing Rules and Orders of the House, so that an additional standing committee would be appointed at the commencement of each session, to be known as "a Committee on the Judiciary," and to consist of seven members. This motion was adopted without division on June 3, 1813.

The Senate had organized its Judiciary Committee during the 1st Congress.<sup>5</sup> The House of Representatives, however, from the 1st through the 12th Congresses had operated without such a committee. In this period bills affecting the court system, and certain other matters that were to be within the jurisdiction of the Judiciary Committee, were handled in the Committee of the Whole<sup>6</sup> or by other committees.

THE 13TH CONGRESS

The 13th Congress extended from March 4, 1813, to March 3, 1815. It sat in three sessions—the first, from May 24, 1813, to August 2, 1813 (71 days); the second, from December 6, 1813, to August 18, 1814 (134 days); and the third, from September 19, 1814, to March 3, 1815 (166 days). The Speaker of the House, during the first session and a part of the second, was Henry Clay, of Kentucky. He resigned January 19, 1814, and on that day was succeeded by Langdon Cheves, of South Carolina. James Madison was serving his second term, as President from March 4, 1813, to March 3, 1817. At that time, the Ellsworth, Paterson, Maclay, Strong, Lee, Bassett, Few, and Wingate were appointed a committee to bring in a bill for organizing the judiciary of the United States." On Apr. 13, 1789, Mr. Carroll and Mr. Izard were added.

<sup>6</sup> E.g., the first Judiciary Act of 1789 originated in the Senate Judiciary Committee; it was reported to the Senate on June 12, 1789, and was passed on July 17. In the House, the Judiciary Act was considered by the Committee of the Whole. 1 Annals of Congress, 659, 796-834, 887-894 (1789-1790).

House consisted of 182 Members, representing 16 States and 4 Territories. The population of the United States, as shown by the census of 1810, was 7,239,881. The ratio of representation was 1 Representative for every 35,000 of population.

The proceedings and debates of the House of Representatives of the United States at the 1st session of the 13th Congress show for Thursday, June 3, 1813:

THE JUDICIARY

Mr. J. G. Jackson, [of Virginia] called up the resolution which he submitted for consideration a day or two ago, in the following words:

Resolved, That the following be added to the standing rules and orders of the House: An additional standing committee shall be appointed, at the commencement of each session, viz: a Committee on the Judiciary, to consist of seven members. It shall be the duty of the said Committee to take into consideration all such petitions and matters or things touching Judicial proceedings, as shall be presented or may come in question and be referred to them by the House, and to report their opinion thereupon, together with such propositions relative thereto as to them shall seem expedient.

No opposition being made to the motion, it was adopted without a division."

Although its creation thus was authorized on June 3, 1813, the Committee on the Judiciary was not organized until December 7, 1813. Standing Committees on Elections, Ways and Means, Claims, Commerce and Manufacturers, Public Lands, District of Columbia, Post Offices and Post Roads, Revisal and Unfinished Business, and Accounts had been appointed on May 26, 1813. Problems associated with the war against Great Britain, which had been declared on June 18, 1812, however, prevented further action with respect to the Judiciary Committee until the 2d session of the 13th Congress.

The second session commenced on December 6, 1813. The record of the proceedings of Tuesday, December 7, 1813, shows:

STANDING COMMITTEES

A motion was made by Mr. Dawson [John Dawson of Virginia], that the House do now proceed to the appointment of the several Standing Committees, except the Committee of Election; and the question being taken, it passed in the affirmative. Whereupon, the following committees were appointed, viz:

Committee of Ways and Means—* * *
 Committee of Commerce and Manufacturers—* * *
 Committee on the Public Lands—* * *
 Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads—* * *
 Committee for the District of Columbia—* * *
 Committee on the Judiciary, Mr. Ingersoll, Mr. Nelson, Mr. Pitken, Mr. Stockton, Mr. Pickens, Mr. Montgomery, and Mr. Oakley.
 Committee of Revisal and Unfinished Business—* * *
 Committee of Accounts—* * *

The Members appointed to the first Committee on the Judiciary were a distinguished group. The committee consisted of Charles Jared Ingersoll, of Pennsylvania; Hugh Nelson, of Virginia; Timothy Pitken, of Connecticut; Richard Stockton, of New Jersey; Israel Pickens, of North Carolina; Thomas Montgomery, of Kentucky; and Thomas J. Oakley, of New York.

* 26 Annals of Congress, 132-133 (1813).
 * Id., pp. 783-784.

The principal work of the committee was reflected in its initial assignments. The proceedings for Friday, December 10, 1813, for example, show:

On motion of Mr. HEMPSTEAD,

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be instructed to inquire into the expediency of making provision, by law, for the appointment of an additional Judge of the Supreme Court, in the Territory of Missouri, exclusively for the District of Arkansas, with leave to report by bill or otherwise.<sup>9</sup>

The proceedings for Friday, December 24, 1813, show:

On motion of Mr. INGERSOLL,

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be instructed to inquire into the expediency of altering the judicial system of the United States.

Resolved, also, That the same committee be instructed to inquire into the expediency of providing by law for the more effectual punishment of crimes against the United States, and that they have leave to report by bill or otherwise.<sup>10</sup>

Committee Jurisdiction

When the Judiciary Committee was originally established as a standing committee in 1813, its purpose was to consider matters pertaining to judicial proceedings. At the time of its organization on December 7, 1813, the committee's jurisdiction was governed by House Rule No. 83 which directed it:

to take into consideration all such petitions and matters or things touching judicial proceedings as shall be presented or may come in question and be referred to them by the House.

Subsequently, on January 6, 1880, Rule No. 83 was revised to read as follows:

All proposed legislation shall be referred to the committees named in the preceding rule, as follows, namely:

Subject relating * * *

4. To judicial proceedings, civil and criminal law: to the Committee on the Judiciary.<sup>11</sup>

There was no change in the form of this rule until 1946, although it later became section 4 of House Rule XI.

In the ensuing years, numerous additional responsibilities have been delegated to the Judiciary Committee. For example, the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 abolished a number of standing committees and transferred to Judiciary much of the jurisdiction of the following five committees: Patents (created in 1837), Immigration and Naturalization (created in 1893), Claims (created in 1794), War Claims (created in 1883), and Revision of the Laws (created in 1868).

On January 14, 1975, House Resolution 5 of the 94th Congress abolished the Committee on Internal Security and transferred to the Judiciary Committee jurisdiction over subversive activities affecting the internal security of the United States. A provision transferring records and staff of the Internal Security Committee to the Judiciary Committee was deleted as obsolete on January 4, 1977. (Rule Xm, § 682(b), 95th Congress.)

With the exception of Claims (established in 1794), the Committee on the Judiciary is older than all the committees it now includes.

The present jurisdiction of the Judiciary Committee is defined in Rule X of the House of Representatives. The relevant section of the rule reads as follows:

RULE X

ESTABLISHMENT AND JURISDICTION OF STANDING COMMITTEES

The Committees and Their Jurisdiction

1. There shall be in the House the following standing committees, each of which shall have the jurisdiction and related functions assigned to it by this clause and clauses 2, 3, and 4; and all bills, resolutions, and other matters relating to subjects within the jurisdiction of any standing committee as listed in this clause shall (in accordance with and subject to clause 5) be referred to such committees, as follows:

- * * * * *
- (m) Committee on the Judiciary
  - (1) Judicial proceedings, civil and criminal generally.
  - (2) Apportionment of Representatives.
  - (3) Bankruptcy, mutiny, espionage, and counterfeiting.
  - (4) Civil liberties.
  - (5) Constitutional amendments.
  - (6) Federal courts and judges.
  - (7) Immigration and naturalization.
  - (8) Interstate compacts generally.
  - (9) Local courts in the Territories and possessions.
  - (10) Measures relating to claims against the United States.
  - (11) Meetings of Congress, attendance of Members and their acceptance of incompatible offices.
  - (12) National penitentiaries.
  - (13) Patent Office.
  - (14) Patents, copyrights, and trademarks.
  - (15) Presidential succession.
  - (16) Protection of trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies.
  - (17) Revision and codification of the Statutes of the United States.
  - (18) State and territorial boundary lines.
  - (19) Communist and other subversive activities affecting the internal security of the United States.

In addition to the jurisdictional areas specifically enumerated in Rule X, in recent years the House Judiciary Committee has been asked to handle several other important responsibilities. Of those, the most significant was the impeachment investigation and hearings involving President Nixon in 1974. (See pages 24-36 for a detailed discussion of the committee's historical role in impeachment.) Also notable have been the committee's investigations of the nominations of Gerald Ford and Nelson Rockefeller to be Vice President, the first times that the 25th Amendment has ever been implemented. (See page 36 for a discussion of this subject.) Other new areas where the committee presently actively exercises jurisdiction include refugee matters (both oversight and legislative responsibility) and international law (with responsibility for prisoner exchange treaties, among other subjects). Also, as already noted (see page 1 above and footnote 2), in 1979 the Speaker of the House transferred the responsibility for identifying court proceedings of vital interest to the Congress to the Judiciary Committee from the Select Committee on Congressional Operations.

AUTHORIZATION OF FUNDS FOR THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Perhaps the most noteworthy recently acquired responsibility of the Judiciary Committee has been to authorize appropriations for the Department of Justice. Since 1837, the Rules of the House have included the provision now found at clause 2 of Rule XXI:

[N]o appropriation shall be reported in any general appropriation bill, or be in order as an amendment thereto, for any expenditure not previously authorized by law.

Despite the fact that the Department of Justice was created by an act of Congress in 1870—more than 30 years after adoption of this rule—and legislative jurisdiction over every activity within the Department reposes in the Judiciary Committee, until 1978 the Department had never been required to come before the committee, nor indeed before the Congress, for authorization of its annual appropriations. The act of 1870 creating the Department, the subsequent creation of subdivisions within the Department, and the authorization of certain activities of the Department were treated in themselves as the requisite authorization of appropriations.

In 1976, however, Congress enacted Public Law 94-503, title II of which explicitly states that beginning in fiscal year 1979 no sums shall be deemed to be authorized to be appropriated for the Department of Justice. Under the terms of the 1976 statute, specific authorizing legislation is now required in order for the Department to qualify for the appropriating process. Consideration of this authorizing legislation has become the province of the Judiciary Committee and its seven subcommittees.

SUBCOMMITTEE JURISDICTION

For many years, under the chairmanship of Emanuel Celler, the Judiciary Committee operated through five unnamed subcommittees with flexible, essentially unfixed jurisdictions. Matters considered by each subcommittee were as assigned and referred by the chairman.

The five subcommittees and their special jurisdiction were as follows:

Subcommittee No. 1—Special jurisdiction over immigration and nationality.

Subcommittee No. 2—Special jurisdiction over claims.

Subcommittee No. 3—Special jurisdiction over patents, trademarks, copyrights, and revision of the laws.

Subcommittee No. 4—Special jurisdiction over bankruptcy and reorganization.

Subcommittee No. 5—Special jurisdiction over antitrust matters.

At the close of the 92nd Congress in 1972, Mr. Celler left the House after 50 years as a Representative, 22 as Judiciary Committee chairman.

On January 23, 1973, the Democratic Caucus of the full House adopted new rules, including a rule entitled "Committee and Subcommittee Organization and Procedure." Section 2(a) of that rule provided that "All subcommittees shall have fixed jurisdiction as determined by the full Committee."

At the suggestion of newly designated Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., the Democratic Caucus of the committee, at a meeting on January 30, 1973, agreed to the appointment of an ad hoc subcommittee to examine and make recommendations regarding the matter of committee reorganization, including the question of fixed subject matter jurisdiction for each subcommittee.

The new chairman had already devoted substantial energies to the projected reorganization even in advance of the opening of the Congress. Together with senior committee members he met on several occasions in late 1972 to plan for an expanded subcommittee structure. It was his feeling that more nearly fixed jurisdictions, together with greater subcommittee autonomy under the leadership of the full committee would produce even stronger legislation.

Immediately after the caucus of the full House acted, therefore, the Judiciary Democrats were in a position to create a constructive ad hoc panel. Such a panel, however, would have proceeded even without the action of the full House.

Chairman Rodino appointed Representative Robert Kastenmeier to chair the ad hoc subcommittee, and designated as members Mr. Mann and three freshman Members, Ms. Jordan, Ms. Holtzman, and Mr. Owens. The participation of the new Members was a major factor in more widely opening the planning process. Mr. Rodino served as an ex officio member.

Subsequent to its creation, Mr. Hutchinson—then ranking minority member of the committee—was also invited to participate as an ex officio member of the ad hoc subcommittee, and he designated Messrs. McClory, Froehlich, and Lott as additional, minority participants.

The subcommittee met formally on six occasions between February and May 1973, studying a wide variety of proposals and circulating a number of draft recommendations. Ultimately, in June 1973, the full committee adopted the final draft of the panel's report—a report that realigned the five unnamed subcommittees by establishing seven permanent subcommittees with both fixed names and fixed jurisdictions.

Pursuant to the ad hoc subcommittee's recommendations, the Judiciary Committee established the following seven subcommittees:

Subcommittee on Immigration, Citizenship and International Law (later: Immigration, Refugees, and International law).

Subcommittee on Claims and Governmental Relations (later: Administrative Law and Governmental Relations).

Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice.

Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights.

Subcommittee on Monopolies and Commercial Law.

Subcommittee on Crime.

Subcommittee on Criminal Justice.

According to the report of the ad hoc subcommittee, in making its recommendations the panel was proceeding on three premises:

(1) The interrelatedness of matters within the jurisdiction of a given subcommittee maximizes the expertise which can be brought to bear on these matters, since a continually growing fund of knowledge and experience can be developed and sustained, rather than being dissipated by the necessity of considering from time to time matters of little or no substantive relationship to each other.

(2) The specific identification of subcommittees with subject areas enhances the ability of the public in general, and interested individuals and organizations in particular, to recognize and monitor congressional activities on matters of public concern.

(3) The investing of subcommittees with specified jurisdiction assists new members of the committee in obtaining assignment to those subcommittees which consider matters of interest and concern to them.

Historical Background of the Subcommittees

Subcommittee on Immigration, Refugees, and International Law

(formerly Subcommittee No. 1—Immigration and Nationality)

ROMANO L. MAZZOLI, Kentucky, Chairman

SAM B. HALL, Jr., Texas
PATRICIA SCHROEDER, Colorado
BARNEY FRANK, Massachusetts

HAMILTON FISH, Jr., New York
DAN LUNGREN, California
BILL McCOLLUM, Florida

Prior to the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, jurisdiction over immigration and naturalization matters was divided. On August 18, 1893, a Committee on Immigration and Naturalization had been established as a standing committee, and before that it had functioned as a select committee. At that time, the Immigration and Naturalization Committee exercised a general, but not an exclusive, jurisdiction over the subject of immigration. In 1882 (47th Cong., 2d sess.), for example, the President's message concerning "the construction of the law restricting immigration of laborers from China," was referred to the Judiciary Committee. The Committee on Immigration and Naturalization was given exclusive jurisdiction over the subject of naturalization in 1906. In 1946, all authority over immigration and naturalization was transferred to the Judiciary Committee and since that time has been a primary responsibility of its members.

When the subcommittees were titled after the 1973 reorganization, subcommittee No. 1 was named Subcommittee on Immigration, Citizenship, and International Law with jurisdiction over:

- (a) Immigration and naturalization.
- (b) Deportation, extradition, and crimes committed outside the United States.
- (c) Passports, travel, and international compacts and organizations.
- (d) Admiralty matters.
- (e) Treaties.
- (f) Offshore mineral rights.
- (g) Grand jury matters.
- (h) Oversight of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

In 1978, prior to the beginning of the 96th Congress, the subcommittee was renamed the Subcommittee on Immigration, Refugees and International Law. This change reflected the fact that following the evacuation of Saigon in 1975, refugee matters (particularly involving Southeast Asian refugees) had occupied a preponderance of the subcommittee's time. In recent years, the subcommittee has, in addition to refugees and the subjects mentioned above, handled prisoner exchange treaties, the investigation of Nazi war criminals living in the United States, the legal aspects of international agreements, and seabed boundary issues. Grand jury jurisdiction is no longer in this subcommittee, having been transferred to the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice in 1981.

Subcommittee on Administrative Law and Governmental Relations

(formerly Subcommittee No. 2—Claims)

GEORGE E. DANIELSON, California, Chairman

MIKE SYNAR, Oklahoma
BILLY LEE EVANS, Georgia
DAN GLICKMAN, Kansas

CARLOS J. MOORHEAD, California
THOMAS N. KINDNESS, Ohio
ROBERT MCCLORY, Illinois

Prior to January 2, 1947, claims against the United States were handled by a separate standing committee. The Committee on Claims had been organized in 1794 and was the second oldest standing committee of the House. (The Elections Committee, the oldest standing committee, had been established in 1789.)

The Committee on Claims had jurisdiction over all "matters or things touching claims and demands on the United States." In the revision of 1880 the form of the rule was fixed to provide for the referral to the Committee on Claims of subjects relating to private and domestic claims, and demands other than war claims, against the United States.

By the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, the Committee on Claims was abolished and its jurisdiction transferred to the Judiciary Committee. Since that time a subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee has devoted a substantial portion of its time to processing public and private claims bills.

Following the 1973 reorganization, Subcommittee No. 2 was named the Subcommittee on Claims and Governmental Relations with jurisdiction over the following subjects:

- (a) Claims against the United States.
- (b) Governmental relations, including boundaries, interstate compacts, and State taxation of interstate commerce.
- (c) Conflicts of laws.
- (d) Administrative law and rules of administrative procedure.
- (e) Lobbying and lobby disclosure.
- (f) Appropriate oversight, including the administrative procedures and practices of departments and regulatory agencies; the functioning of the Court of Claims Section and the Tort Claims Section (now the Commercial Branch and the Torts Branch) of the Civil Division of the Justice Department.
- (g) Ethics.

Following the 93d Congress, the subcommittee was renamed the Subcommittee on Administrative Law and Governmental Relations. While its basic jurisdiction has remained essentially unchanged since the 1973 reorganization, its emphasis, on the administrative side, has been on administrative law, including legislation relating to administrative practice and procedure, and judicial review of agency action, including amendments to the Administrative Procedures Act as now codified in Title V of the United States Code. Its jurisdiction has also evolved to include public contract law and financial disclosure.

Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties and the Administration of Justice

(formerly Subcommittee No. 3—Patents, Trademarks, Copyrights, and Revision of the Laws)

ROBERT W. KASTENMEIER, Wisconsin, Chairman

JACK BROOKS, Texas
GEORGE E. DANIELSON, California
BARNEY FRANK, Massachusetts

TOM RAILSBACK, Illinois
HAROLD S. SAWYER, Michigan
M. CALDWELL BUTLER, Virginia

The work of this subcommittee has its roots in two standing committees with long histories. On September 15, 1837, in the first session of the 25th Congress, Congress "raised" a Committee on Patents, with jurisdiction at that time confined to patents alone. Jurisdiction over copyrights and trademarks was added on motion of Mr. John S. Newberry, of Michigan, in the second session of the 46th Congress.

A standing Committee on the Revision of Laws was created on July 25, 1868, and in 1880 its jurisdiction was fixed "to the revision and codification of the statutes of the United States." Prior to its establishment as a standing committee, it had operated as a select committee. The Committee on the Revision of Laws replaced an old standing committee that had become obsolete; in the early years of the Republic, the Revisal and Unfinished Business Committee, established in 1795, had been useful to give continuity to business that had not been completed during the previous session. At that time business unfinished fell with the end of the session.

In the Reorganization Act of 1946, the jurisdictions of both the Committee on Patents and the Committee on the Revision of Laws<sup>12</sup> were transferred to the Judiciary Committee.

<sup>12</sup> On January 3, 1975, House Resolution 988 established the "Office of the Law Revision Counsel" as a separate entity. The Rules of the House, however provided for continued close cooperation with the Committee on the Judiciary. The purpose and function of the Office as set forth in the House Rules and Manual, 94th Congress, state:

OFFICE OF THE LAW REVISION COUNSEL

Sec. 205. (a) There is established in the House of Representatives an office to be known as the Office of the Law Revision Counsel, referred to hereinafter in this section as the "Office".

(b) The principal purpose of the Office shall be to develop and keep current an official and positive codification of the laws of the United States. The Office shall maintain impartiality as to issues of legislative policy to be determined by the House.

(c) The functions of the Office shall be as follows:

(1) To prepare and submit to the Committee on the Judiciary one title at a time, a complete compilation, restatement, and revision of the general and permanent laws of the United States which conforms to the understood policy, intent, and purpose of the Con-

Although the Office of Law Revision Counsel was established as a separate entity in 1975 (see footnote 12), it still functions in close cooperation with the Judiciary Committee, which is responsible for processing the legislation this office prepares. The law revision staff classifies all laws enacted by the Congress and undertakes codification of specific areas of the law. After a law is enacted, it is assigned to a specific title and section of the United States Code or District of Columbia Code. There is in process a program of enacting titles of the United States Code and the District of Columbia Code into positive law, rather than merely prima facie evidence of the law. The goal of the Judiciary Committee is to prepare all titles of the United States Code and the District of Columbia Code for enactment into positive law.

When Subcommittee No. 3 was titled in 1973, its jurisdiction was fixed to include the following subjects:

- (a) The courts—their noncriminal rules, noncriminal procedures, operation, except authorization for additional judgeships.
- (b) U.S. attorneys, U.S. marshals.
- (c) Corrections, parole.
- (d) Amnesty.
- (e) Judicial ethics and recompense.

gress in the original enactments, with such amendments and corrections as will remove ambiguities, contradictions, and other imperfections both of substance and of form, separately stated, with a view to the enactment of each title as positive law.

(2) To examine periodically all of the public laws enacted by the Congress and submit to the Committee on the Judiciary recommendations for the repeal of obsolete, superfluous, and superseded provisions contained therein.

(3) To prepare and publish periodically a new edition of the United States Code (including those titles which are not yet enacted into positive law as well as those titles which have been so enacted), with annual cumulative supplements reflecting newly enacted laws.

(4) To classify newly enacted provisions of law to their proper positions in the Code where the titles involved have not yet been enacted into positive law.

(5) To prepare and submit periodically such revisions in the titles of the Code which have been enacted into positive law as may be necessary to keep such titles current.

(6) To prepare and publish periodically new editions of the District of Columbia Code, with annual cumulative supplements reflecting newly enacted laws, until such time as the District of Columbia Self-Government and Governmental Reorganization Act becomes effective.

(7) To provide the Committee on the Judiciary with such advice and assistance as the committee may request in carrying out its functions with respect to the revision and codification of the Federal statutes.

(d) The management, supervision, and administration of the Office are vested in the Law Revision Counsel, who shall be appointed by the Speaker without regard to political affiliation and solely on the basis of fitness to perform the duties of the position. Any person so appointed shall serve at the pleasure of the Speaker.

(e) (1) With the approval of the Speaker, or in accordance with policies and procedures approved by the Speaker, the Law Revision Counsel shall appoint such employees as may be necessary for the prompt and efficient performance of the functions of the Office. Any such appointment shall be made without regard to political affiliation and solely on the basis of fitness to perform the duties of the position. Any person so appointed may be removed by the Law Revision Counsel with the approval of the Speaker, or in accordance with policies and procedures approved by the Speaker.

(2) (A) One of the employees appointed under paragraph (1) shall be designated by the Law Revision Counsel as Deputy Law Revision Counsel. During the absence or disability of the Law Revision Counsel, or when the office is vacant, the Deputy Law Revision Counsel shall perform the functions of the Law Revision Counsel.

(B) The Law Revision Counsel may delegate to the Deputy Law Revision Counsel and to other employees appointed under paragraph (1) such of his or her functions as he or she considers necessary or appropriate.

(f) The Law Revision Counsel shall be paid at a per annum gross rate not to exceed level IV of the Executive Schedule of section 5315 of title 5, United States Code; and members of the staff of the Office other than the Law Revision Counsel shall be paid at per annum gross rates fixed by the Law Revision Counsel with the approval of the Speaker or in accordance with policies approved by the Speaker, but not in excess of a per annum gross rate equal to level V of such schedule.

(g) In accordance with policies and procedures approved by the Speaker, the Law Revision Counsel is authorized to make such expenditures as may be necessary or appropriate for the functioning of the Office.

(h) Until such time as funds are appropriated by law to carry out the purpose of this section, the contingent fund of the House shall be available for such purpose.

- (f) Legal services.
- (g) Patents, trademarks, copyright.
- (h) Oversight of the National Legal Services Corporation, the Federal Bureau of Prisons, the U.S. Copyright Office, the U.S. Patent Commission and the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts.

As the jurisdiction of this subcommittee has evolved since 1973, much of its emphasis has been on First and Fourth Amendment matters, including obscenity, newsman's privilege, and church-state issues, as well as foreign intelligence surveillance and wiretapping and electronic surveillance generally. Another major area of subcommittee interest has been financing legal services and the costs of litigation and consideration of attorney's fees. Finally, the justice-related aspects of amnesty and selective service have occupied the subcommittee's time as well.

Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights

(formerly Subcommittee No. 4—Bankruptcy and Reorganization)

DON EDWARDS, California, Chairman

ROBERT W. KASTENMEIER, Wisconsin
PATRICIA SCHROEDER, Colorado
HAROLD WASHINGTON, Illinois

HENRY J. HYDE, Illinois
F. JAMES SENSENBRENNER, Jr.,
Wisconsin
DAN LUNGREN, California

While the primary areas of jurisdiction of this subcommittee today are civil rights and liberties and constitutional amendments, initially much of its work concerned bankruptcy.

Jurisdiction over matters pertaining to bankruptcy and corporate reorganization traditionally have been within the responsibilities of the Judiciary Committee. As early as January 5, 1841, the Judiciary Committee had reported out a bankruptcy bill.<sup>13</sup> Since that time legislation concerning bankruptcy has been an important jurisdictional area of the committee.

When the subcommittees were reorganized in 1973, the following jurisdiction was assigned to the Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights:

- (a) Constitutional amendments.
- (b) Civil rights.
- (c) Privacy matters.
- (d) District of Columbia home rule.
- (e) Separation of powers.
- (f) Bankruptcy.
- (g) Oversight of the Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department.
- (h) Oversight of the Federal Bureau of Investigation of the Justice Department.

At the beginning of the 97th Congress, jurisdiction over bankruptcy matters was transferred from this subcommittee to the Subcommittee on Monopolies and Commercial Law.

Subcommittee on Monopolies and Commercial Law

(formerly Subcommittee No. 5—Antitrust)

PETER W. RODINO, Jr., New Jersey, Chairman

JACK BROOKS, Texas
DON EDWARDS, California
JOHN F. SEIBERLING, Ohio
ROMANO L. MAZZOLI, Kentucky
WILLIAM J. HUGHES, New Jersey
BILLY LEE EVANS, Georgia

ROBERT MCCLORY, Illinois
M. CALDWELL BUTLER, Virginia
TOM RAILSBACK, Illinois
CARLOS J. MOORHEAD, California
HENRY J. HYDE, Illinois

The core jurisdiction of this subcommittee involves subjects dealing generally with economic regulation, with particular emphasis on amendments to, and administration of, the antitrust laws.

This subcommittee is active in connection with the Judiciary Committee's mandate to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies. The basic charter of the antitrust laws, the Sherman Act of 1890, was processed through the Judiciary Committee and reported to the House on April 25, 1890.<sup>14</sup> Similarly, supplemental legislation to amend or to reinforce the provisions of the Sherman Act has been handled by the Judiciary Committee.<sup>15</sup>

A second area of major emphasis of the subcommittee is judgeships. The operation of the Federal judicial system has been of principal concern to the Judiciary Committee since its organization in 1813. This jurisdiction has involved legislative provision for growth and improvement of the Federal judicial system; authorization of additional district and circuit judges, as well as additional places where terms of court may be held. Provision has been made for effective administration of the judicial system through legislation to provide salary increases for Federal judges, U.S. attorneys and other court officials, as well as increases in fees for witnesses, jurors, and U.S. marshals and their deputies.

At the time of the reorganization of the Judiciary Committee in 1973, the Subcommittee on Monopolies and Commercial Law was given jurisdiction over:

- (a) Antitrust.
- (b) Monopolies.
- (c) Judgeships.

(d) Oversight over the Antitrust Division of the Justice Department.

In 1981, at the beginning of the 97th Congress, responsibility for matters involving bankruptcy was transferred to this subcommittee from the Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights.

Subcommittee on Crime

WILLIAM J. HUGHES, New Jersey, Chairman

ROBERT W. KASTENMEIER, Wisconsin
JOHN CONYERS, Jr., Michigan
SAM B. HALL, Jr., Texas

HAROLD S. SAWYER, Michigan
JOHN M. ASHBROOK, Ohio
HAMILTON FISH, Jr., New York

On June 10, 1973, following the reorganization based on the ad hoc subcommittee proposals, the Subcommittee on Crime was established as a standing subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee. Its jurisdiction included, but was not limited to:

- (a) Gun control and firearms legislation.
- (b) Juvenile delinquency.
- (c) Oversight of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) of the Justice Department.

Since its creation, the Subcommittee on Crime has continued to exercise jurisdiction over the prevention of crime and problems of criminal offenders, and additionally has undertaken jurisdiction over criminal law enforcement of the Controlled Substances Act and oversight of the Drug Enforcement Administration (under an agreement with the Energy and Commerce Committee reached in the 96th Congress). It also has assumed jurisdiction over separate legislation creating new Federal crimes such as cigarette bootlegging and child pornography.

Subcommittee on Criminal Justice

JOHN CONYERS, Jr., Michigan, Chairman

DON EDWARDS, California
JOHN F. SEIBERLING, Ohio
SAM B. HALL, Jr., Texas

P. JAMES SENSENBRENNER, Jr.,
Wisconsin
THOMAS N. KINDNESS, Ohio
BILL MCCOLLUM, Florida

The creation of the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice as a standing subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee in June 1973 was also the result of recommendations by the ad hoc subcommittee examining reorganization. The Criminal Justice Subcommittee's jurisdiction was fixed to include:

- (a) Revision of the U.S. criminal code.
- (b) Victims of crime legislation.
- (c) Criminal justice generally, including Federal Rules of Evidence and Criminal Procedure, bail, Criminal Justice Act of 1964.
- (d) Oversight of the Criminal Division of the Justice Department.

In the fall of 1973, the subcommittee was also given jurisdiction over matters pertaining to the office of special prosecutor.

In recent years, the subcommittee's jurisdiction has extended to oversight of the criminal enforcement activities of U.S. Attorneys. Additionally, responsibility for matters involving amendments to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure was transferred to this subcommittee from the Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties, and the Administration of Justice in 1974, and responsibility for matters involving grand juries was transferred to this subcommittee from the Subcommittee on Immigration, Refugees, and International Law in 1981.

Chronology of Changes in the Size of the Committee on the Judiciary

When the House Judiciary Committee was first created on June 3, 1813, during the 13th Congress, it was composed of seven Members. At that time and until 1975, the House set size limitations in its Rules for the numbers of members of the standing committees. Since January 3, 1975, the House Rules have not fixed the size of committees, but have assigned to the party organizations the duty of determining the size of each committee.

The size of the Judiciary Committee has fluctuated over the years ranging from seven members during the 13th Congress to a high of 38 Members in the 92d and 93d Congresses. The first change in the size of the committee came during the 23d Congress, on December 5, 1833, when the rule that fixed the number and size of House committees was amended to permit those committees consisting of seven members to increase to nine members. The Judiciary Committee had nine members until the 44th Congress (1875-1877) when it had 11 members.

Eleven members continued to serve on the committee until the 46th Congress (1879-1881) when it had 15 members. The next change in the committee's size occurred in the 53d Congress (1891-1893) when the committee had 17 members. The membership remained at 17 until the 59th Congress (1905-1907) when it increased to 18.

In the 62d Congress (1911-1913) the committee had 21 members, the size it kept until the 69th Congress (1925-1927) when it expanded to 23 members. Between the 73d Congress (1933-1935) and the 80th Congress (1947-1949), the committee grew from 25 members to 27. The committee expanded to 32 members in the 85th Congress (1957-1959), 35 in the 88th Congress (1963-1965), and 38 members in the 92d and 93d Congresses (1971-1974).

In the 94th Congress (1975-1977), the first Congress in which committee size was not fixed by the House Rules, 34 members were elected to the committee. The membership remained at 34 until the 96th Congress (1979-1981) when it changed to 31. In the first session of the 97th Congress, the committee was composed of 28 members.

Major Investigations, Oversight Hearings, and Related Activities

In addition to its normal legislative functions the House Committee on the Judiciary has conducted several major oversight studies and investigations since the 80th Congress. Oversight includes meetings and hearings held for one of the following purposes: (1) To analyze the effectiveness of legislative programs and policies; (2) to review and attempt to regulate unacceptable forms of bureaucratic behavior; (3) to determine whether the Federal Government is implementing the policy objectives of Congress; and (4) to analyze national and international problems requiring Federal action. (Hearings or meetings held to consider or draft legislation or to authorize programs are deemed not to constitute oversight—even though some oversight of a program or agency may legitimately be a byproduct of the authorization and legislative process.)

During the first session of the 84th Congress, the Antitrust Subcommittee conducted a comprehensive series of hearings on current antitrust problems. The hearings extended over a period of 17 days during which testimony was taken from 55 Government officials and leaders in the fields of banking, farming, labor, and business. Among the issues studied by this subcommittee during these hearings were antitrust enforcement procedures, recommendations of the Attorney General's Committee to Study the Antitrust Laws, the forces involved in the merger movement, and the antitrust problems posed by new forces active in the economy.

These hearings resulted in the subsequent introduction of bills to amend the Celler-Kefauver Antimerger Act of 1950. The committee issued two reports on those merger problems which discussed the forces active in the merger movement and the effectiveness of existing legislation.

The Antitrust Subcommittee also held extensive hearings on the problems involved in the organization and operation of advisory groups to assist in the exercise of administrative responsibilities by Government officials, and the problems involved in the Government's use of businessmen serving in key positions without compensation ("WOCs"). During the 15 days of hearings on the WOCs and Government advisory groups, the subcommittee received testimony from WOCs who had formerly served in the Federal Government, and officials of the Departments of Commerce and Justice, the Office of Defense Mobilization, and the Civil Service Commission.

The subcommittee investigation revealed some of the conflict of interest problems inherent in the use of WOCs by the Federal Government. This investigation indicated the necessity for safeguards to avoid the possibility of Government abdication of policy-making functions to private bodies in its use of advisory groups. The subcommittee analyzed possible abuses of these advisory groups in relation to overt violations of the antitrust laws. The subcommittee issued two interim reports: "The Business Advisory Council for the Department of Commerce," December 12, 1955, which analyzed the operations and activities of a special advisory group created to assist the Secretary of Commerce; and "WOCs and Government Advisory Groups," April 24, 1956, which examined the practices and procedures of the Department of Commerce in the Business and Defense Services Administration, and its predecessor, the National Production Authority, in the utilization of WOCs and advisory groups.

During the 85th Congress the House Committee on the Judiciary established the Special Subcommittee to Study Supreme Court Decisions. The subcommittee was authorized to conduct an investigation and make findings and recommendations with reference to questions raised by certain decisions of the Supreme Court, rendered during the October 1956 term, which ostensibly affected powers of Congress to investigate violations of Federal laws relating to subversive activities and the enforcement of Federal criminal laws. The subcommittee held hearings, studied selected Supreme Court decisions and heard testimony from Federal and local law enforcement officials, and representatives of several bar associations.

The committee studied the decision in Mallory v. United States, 354 U.S. 449 (1957), and several other cases. The subcommittee made its recommendations and legislative proposals to the full committee including a proposal designed to overrule the decision of the Supreme Court in the Mallory case.

During second session of the 85th Congress the Antitrust Subcommittee completed hearings on its investigation of the consent decree program of the Department of Justice. The subcommittee attempted to determine the effectiveness of the disposition of civil antitrust cases by consent decrees in antitrust enforcement and to restore competition to the industries concerned. The subcommittee also sought to eliminate the conditions that caused the Government to institute antitrust proceedings. After an extensive study of the oil pipeline decree and the A.T. & T. decree, the subcommittee's investigation disclosed a number of questionable activities under the decree program.

The Antitrust Subcommittee also conducted an investigation, including eight days of hearing, into the operations of the office of the U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, Mr. Robert Tieken. The subcommittee investigated complaints that Mr. Tieken had abused the powers of his office and that in the conduct of his office may have violated Canons of Ethics and conflict of interest statutes. This inquiry led to the recommendation, contained in the subcommittee report on the matter issued in June 1958, that Mr. Tieken be removed from office "forth with."

During the 87th Congress the Special Subcommittee on State Taxation of Interstate Commerce held extensive hearings on State income taxation of mercantile manufacturing corporations and on the problems of sales and use taxes. (This study was authorized by Public Law 86-272.) The subcommittee heard over 100 witnesses and gathered approximately 1,500 pages of testimony. Extensive information and materials were assembled through comprehensive questionnaire surveys, worksheets, interviews, and hearings. This investigation represented the first study of its kind undertaken by the U.S. Congress. The subcommittee concluded that the existing system was inoperative. Although the subcommittee's investigation threw new light on the problems in this area and on solutions to them, it did not make recommendations.

The Subcommittee on Antitrust and Monopoly held extensive hearings during the 91st Congress in connection with its investigation of conglomerate mergers. The purpose of this investigation was to determine the necessity for revision of Federal antitrust laws in order to curb excessive concentration of economic power.

In numerous recent cases the Judiciary Committee's investigations and oversight activities have led to significant legislation. Four of the most notable examples have been the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, the Refugee Act of 1980, and the proposed revision of the Federal criminal code.

The Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976, enacted during the second session of the 94th Congress, has been called the most significant antitrust legislation passed since the Celler-Kefauver Antimerger Act of 1950.

The final bill originated as three separate pieces of legislation and was the subject of more than two years of work in the Subcommittee on Monopolies and Commercial Law. The subcommittee held some 11 days of hearings and heard from some 25 witnesses including State attorneys general, officials of the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission, attorneys representing various businesses and business trade associations, and Emanuel Celler, former chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

Title I of the Act consists of amendments to the Civil Process Act of 1962. It provides the Department of Justice more authority in investigating possible antitrust violations by extending the reach of the civil investigative demand (CID), a kind of subpoena used in antitrust investigations. This title began as legislation introduced in both the 93d and 94th Congresses by Chairman Rodino.

Title II directs companies of a certain size to notify the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission 30 days before consummating mergers. This is a concept which had been sought for almost 20 years.

Title III authorizes State attorneys general to bring triple damage antitrust suits (parens patriae) in federal court on behalf of state citizens injured by violations of the Sherman Antitrust Act. This was the most heavily debated and controversial section of the law.

The first major revision of the Nation's bankruptcy laws in 40 years was enacted during the second session of the 95th Congress. The legislation was the product of over six years of study, hearings, research, and drafting beginning with the Commission on the Bankruptcy Laws of the United States, which had been established by the Congress in 1970.

The Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978 was the culmination of three years of work by the Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights. Work on the legislation began during the 94th Congress with hearings on two bills. On the first day of the 95th Congress, subcommittee chairman Don Edwards and other subcommittee members introduced a new bill to establish a uniform bankruptcy law. In the course of the subcommittee's work, it held 46 days of hearings and heard from some 131 witnesses including academicians, bankruptcy judges, attorneys, the President of the National Conference of Bankruptcy Judges, the Chief of the Bankruptcy Division of the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, labor leaders, the chairman of the American Bar Association's Task Force on Revision of Bankruptcy Laws, the U.S. Attorney General, and officials from the Justice Department, the Federal Trade Commission, the Internal Revenue Service, and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Early in the 95th Congress the subcommittee held four days of briefing sessions followed by 22 days of markup sessions. These sessions lasted over 42 hours and the subcommittee adopted over 100 amendments. The full committee began work on a clean bill later in the first session. However, a potential jurisdictional conflict with the Ways and Means Committee and later a floor amendment on the court and administrative structure for bankruptcy cases caused a delay in the progress of the legislation.

After additional hearings by the Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights and House and Senate floor action, the measure was signed into law on November 6, 1978. It created a new system of bankruptcy judges, modernized the federal bankruptcy law for creditors as well as consumer and business debtors, and consolidated laws dealing with business reorganization.

In March 1980 the President signed the Refugee Act of 1980 which provides for a comprehensive refugee policy with the objective of creating a systematic and flexible procedure for the admission and resettlement of refugees in the United States. The haphazard response of the United States to 30 years of continuing refugee problems, and the Judiciary Committee's experience during the 94th and 95th Congresses with the emergency enactment and subsequent extensions of the Indochina Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1975 convinced the committee that enactment of this legislation was imperative.

The measure was introduced in the first session of the 96th Congress by committee chairman Rodino and cosponsored by Elizabeth Holtzman, chairwoman of the Subcommittee on Immigration, Refugees, and International Law. The subcommittee held five days of hearings and testimony was heard from 26 witnesses including the Attorney General, the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, the U.S. Coordinator of Refugee Affairs, as well as representatives of the General Accounting Office, Amnesty International, the American Civil Liberties Union, and the National Coalition for Refugee Resettlement. Testimony was also received from scholars and resettlement experts. The subcommittee had previously held three days of hearings in 1977 on the admission of refugees into the U.S. and heard from some eight witnesses.

This law was the first major revamping of refugee and immigration laws since 1965. It amends the definition of refugee to eliminate discrimination on the basis of outmoded geographical and ideological considerations. It separates the admission of refugees from that of immigrants under the preference system and authorizes the admission of up to 50,000 refugees per year. It also authorizes the admission of additional refugees in situations where it is foreseen at the beginning of the fiscal year that humanitarian concerns justify additional numbers and where unforeseen emergencies arise after the beginning of the fiscal year.

Procedures for consultation with Congress, including the House and Senate Judiciary Committees, on numbers and allocations of refugees to be admitted in these situations are carefully delineated. Previously, there had been some informal consultation with Congress, but the Act mandates formal consultation explicitly and sets forth detailed informational requirements.

Finally, the Act includes comprehensive and uniform provisions for Federal support of refugee resettlement and absorption to be administered by a newly-created Office of Refugee Resettlement within the Department of Health and Human Services.

The Judiciary Committee has also played a significant role from the beginning in attempts to revise the Federal Criminal Code; the legislation creating the National Commission on Reform of Federal Criminal Laws was reported by the committee during the 89th Congress. Four members of the committee served on the National Commission, which issued its report in 1971.

Although criminal law revision bills were introduced in the House during the 93th and 94th Congresses, most of the work on these bills occurred in the Senate. During the 95th Congress, however, the House Subcommittee on Criminal Justice began working on the recodification legislation early in the first session. The subcommittee's work included roundtable discussions with Members of Congress, Federal judges, and other persons interested in the Federal criminal justice system; some 16 open-discussion meetings at which the Senate-passed bill, a bill introduced by Representative Cohen, and recodification legislation from previous Congresses were studied in detail; 23 hearings, at which some 110 witnesses testified; and some 16 markup meetings, during the course of which the subcommittee drafted its recodification bill. The subcommittee began circulation of a tentative draft of its bill in June 1978, and on July 28, 1978, the subcommittee ordered a clean bill introduced and reported favorably. Because of the lateness of the session, the Judiciary Committee was unable to take up the subcommittee's bill, and on October 4, 1978, the committee adopted a resolution authorizing the subcommittee to report on its findings with regard to the recodification of Federal criminal laws. The subcommittee's report was published as Committee Print No. 29 of the 95th Congress.

In the 96th Congress, the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, dissatisfied with previous revision efforts, undertook to draft its own revision legislation. Initially, the subcommittee devoted 74 public meetings to drafting a new title 18. During this process, information and recommendations were sought and received from the Department of Justice, the American Bar Association, the Business Roundtable, the American Civil Liberties Union, and many other groups. The subcommittee studied current statutory and case law, the recommendations of the Brown Commission, the provisions of the Model Penal code and the codes of the various States, and the previous legislative proposals for reform. During August 1979, the subcommittee circulated a draft code to interested groups, academics, and other portions of the public for comment.

In September and October 1979, the subcommittee held 10 more days of hearings. Witnesses representing over 40 organizations testified or submitted written statements to the subcommittee. Following the hearings, the subcommittee devoted an additional 69 meetings to revising the draft legislation. On January 7, 1980, Representatives Drinan and Kindness introduced H.R. 6233, the product of the subcommittee's work. Finally, on March 11, 1980, the subcommittee voted 7-1 to recommend H.R. 6915, a "clean" version of the proposal, to the full Judiciary Committee.

On April 23, 1980, the full Committee began mark up of H.R. 6915. During 18 days of mark up, the Committee considered more than 90 amendments to the bill. On July 2, 1980, the Judiciary Committee voted by voice vote to recommend H.R. 6915, as amended, to the House of Representatives.

Despite the unprecedented attention given this legislation, however, time ran out during the 96th Congress, and H.R. 6915 never reached the House floor. Nonetheless, work has continued on this project in the 97th Congress.

Oversight Hearings

The Committee and Impeachment

No discussion of the committee's history would be complete without special mention of the extraordinary constitutional responsibilities undertaken by the 38 member committee during the 93d Congress, in 1973 and 1974.

For the first time since the administration of Andrew Johnson and for only the second time in the history of the Republic, the House of Representatives formally authorized an impeachment inquiry of a President. On February 6, 1974, the House adopted by a vote of 410-4, a resolution—House Resolution 803—authorizing and directing the Committee on the Judiciary “to investigate fully and completely whether sufficient grounds exist for the House of Representatives to exercise its constitutional power to impeach Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States of America” and to report “such resolutions, articles of impeachment, or other recommendations as it deems proper.” This action officially set into motion an investigation by the Judiciary Committee that would culminate with the Committee’s reporting three articles of impeachment and eventually led to President Nixon’s resignation on August 9, 1974 and Vice President Gerald R. Ford becoming the 38th President of the United States.

Impeachment, a power exclusively reserved for Congress’ use by the Constitution, and described by Lord Bryce as “the heaviest piece of artillery in the Congressional arsenal,” offers Congress an extraordinarily powerful tool to investigate alleged executive and judicial misbehavior and to eliminate such misbehavior through the conviction and removal from office of the offending individuals. Throughout American history, the House of Representatives, in a vast majority of the cases, has chosen its Judiciary Committee to bear the burden of investigating the questions of high constitutional privilege raised by impeachment resolutions.

There have been 90 identifiable impeachment-related inquiries conducted by Congress since the first such investigation of George Turner, a Northwest Territory judge, in 1796. Of the approximately 80 investigations conducted after the Judiciary Committee’s formation in 1813, the committee has been involved in a great majority—including the two formal impeachment investigations of Presidents.

EARLY HISTORY

James Madison, in his classic observation on the nature of men and the necessity for government, wrote that if men were angels there would be no need for either laws or government, but since men are not angels it is necessary to construct “auxiliary precautions” against abuses of power. Impeachment is one of those auxiliary precautions.

Scarred in some instances by personal experience, Madison’s colleagues at the Constitutional Convention of 1787 shared his fear of despotism, and they were determined to provide the new Republic with a means whereby a President and other public officials could be held accountable. At the same time, the Founding Fathers sought also to control the authority of Congress in punishing the misuse of power. So while Congress was given the power to remove from office those convicted of misusing their public trust, criminal punishment was left to the discretion of the courts.

Under the hand of the Framers of the Constitution, the House of Representatives was given the “sole Power of Impeachment,”<sup>14</sup> and the Senate was accorded “sole Power to try all Impeachments.”<sup>15</sup> Impeach-

ments could be brought against the "President, Vice President, and all Civil Officers of the United States"<sup>16</sup> for "Treason, Bribery, or other high Crimes and Misdemeanors."<sup>17</sup> Conviction meant "removal from Office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any Office of honor, Trust, or Profit under the United States."<sup>18</sup>

Although the records of the Philadelphia Convention show that the delegates were primarily concerned with the impeachment of Presidents, the proceedings of Congress over the years indicate that impeachment has been utilized principally as a means of removing Federal judges. On only one other occasion prior to the impeachment investigation of President Richard M. Nixon has the impeachment process touched with any degree of seriousness upon the Presidency of the United States. There have been resolutions to impeach, or investigate the possibility of impeaching, at least six Presidents (Richard M. Nixon—1972, 1973, and 1974; Harry S. Truman—1952; Herbert C. Hoover—1932 and 1933; Grover Cleveland—1896; Andrew Johnson—1867 and 1868; and John Tyler—1843), but only the charges against Presidents Johnson and Nixon have been reported to the full body of the House by the committee assigned to consider their propriety.

JUDICIAL IMPEACHMENTS

Federal judges have been accused in 9 of the 12 impeachment cases that have reached the floor of the Senate and have constituted the guilty parties in all four of the Senate convictions. Of the five impeachments involving Federal judges which did not result in a conviction, the impeachment trial of Associate Justice of the Supreme Court Samuel Chase is the most famous and controversial. Scholars have long regarded the impeachment of Justice Chase as essentially a move on the part of the Jefferson Administration to set a precedent for ousting Federal judges. Chase was charged on December 4, 1804 with harsh and partisan conduct on the bench and with unfairness to litigants. more than a year after the investigation began, the trial in the Senate concluded with an acquittal.

An impeachment resolution did not again reach the floor of the Senate for a quarter of a century. In 1830, James H. Peck, judge of the United States District Court for the District of Missouri, was impeached but subsequently acquitted of having set an unreasonable and oppressive penalty for contempt of court.

In the century that followed the trial of Judge Peck, three other U.S. district court judges were impeached and then acquitted. In 1904, the House charged that Charles Swayne, U.S. judge for the Northern District of Florida, was living outside his district, had improperly fined a lawyer for contempt, and was using a private railroad car that had been put in the hands of a receiver that he had appointed. Judge Swayne's trial in the Senate ended on February 27, 1904, with votes of acquittal on all articles issued against the accused.

On April 1, 1926, George W. English, U.S. judge for the Eastern District of Illinois, was impeached by the House on charges of partiality, tryanny, and oppression. The following day Judge English resigned his office. The Senate, after convening as a court even though English had resigned, dismissed the charges against the judge on December 13, 1926, at the request of the House managers. In 1933, Harold Louderback, U.S. judge for the Northern District of California, was impeached by the House but acquitted by the Senate of favoritism and conspiracy in the appointment of bank receivers.

In the first impeachment conviction by the Senate, John Pickering, U.S. district judge for the district of New Hampshire, who at the time of the impeachment was known to be insane, was removed from office on March 8, 1804, for irregular judicial procedures, loose morals, and drunkenness. Not until the Republic had entered the Civil War was another judge convicted by the Senate. During the War Between the States, the House voted to impeach and the Senate to convict West H. Humphreys, a U.S. judge for the East, Middle, and West Districts of Tennessee, for accepting an appointment as a Confederate judge without having first resigned from his Union judicial assignment.

In the 20th century, there have been two convictions by the Senate. In January 1913, Judge Robert W. Archbald, associate judge of the U.S. Commerce Court, was impeached and convicted of having accepted favors from litigants. The last man to be impeached by the House was the U.S. judge for the Southern District of Florida, Halsted L. Ritter, who was convicted in 1936 by an exact two-thirds majority of the Senate for bringing his court into scandal and disrepute by filing false income tax returns among other specifications.

NONJUDICIAL IMPEACHMENTS

The three nonjudicial officials impeached, but not convicted, were Senator William Blount in 1798; William W. Belknap, President Grant's Secretary of War, in 1876; and President Andrew Johnson in 1868.

On July 7, 1798, the House impeached Senator Blount on charges of having conspired to launch a military expedition, with the aid of the British, against Louisiana and Spanish Florida to achieve the transfer of those areas to British control. The Senate, the following day, expelled Blount on the charge that he was "guilty of high misdemeanor, entirely inconsistent with his public trust and duty as a Senator." Six months later, the Senate, on January 17, 1799, voted to dismiss the charges against Blount for lack of jurisdiction.

ANDREW JOHNSON

Beginning in the latter days of the second session of the 39th Congress and concluding the 3rd day of the second session of the 40th Congress, the House Judiciary Committee conducted an exhaustive impeachment investigation of President Andrew Johnson. With the conclusion of the committee's inquiry, a recommendation for impeachment was drafted. The House, however, on December 7, 1867, rejected the committee's resolution impeaching the President.

A second inquiry into the President's conduct began with the new year, this time under the direction of the Committee on Reconstruction.

On February 10, 1868, the Reconstruction Committee received the evidence gathered in 1867. Then on February 21, 1868, President Johnson formally dismissed Secretary of War Edwin M. Stanton. The dismissal of Stanton was a direct violation of the Tenure of Office Act of March 2, 1867, which required Senate concurrence in the appointment and removal of members of the Cabinet.

Congressional reaction to Stanton's dismissal was immediate. The day after President Johnson removed Stanton the Committee on Reconstruction recommended impeachment of the President. On February 24, 1868, the House approved the committee's resolution. Subsequently, 11 articles of impeachment were adopted by the House on March 2 and 3, including the charge that the President had criticized Congress in speeches. The principal thrust of the articles, however, related to the dismissal of Stanton. The longest impeachment trial in the Nation's history followed, extending from March 30 to May 26, 1868. In dramatic votes taken on May 16 and May 26, President Johnson was acquitted by a single vote on each of the three articles against him which were presented to the Senate.

WILLIAM W. BELKNAP

On March 2, 1876, Secretary of War William W. Belknap was impeached on charges that he had accepted money—$6,000 a year for several years—for the appointment and retention of an Indian post trader at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. Despite Belknap's resignation a few hours prior to the House vote, articles of impeachment were agreed to a month after the charges had been submitted. In late May 1876, the Senate declared by a vote of 37 to 19 that it had jurisdiction over Belknap regardless of his resignation. A lengthy trial in the Senate concluded with Belknap's acquittal on August 1.

THE IMPEACHMENT INVESTIGATION OF RICHARD NIXON

While the details of President Richard M. Nixon's departure from public life may in time slip from memory, the Judiciary Committee's inquiry preceding Mr. Nixon's resignation will leave a lasting impact on the administrations of future Chief Executives.

During the first session of the 93d Congress more than 40 resolutions were introduced in the House of Representatives calling for either the impeachment or an investigation into the possible impeachment of President Richard M. Nixon.<sup>19</sup> Although the October 20, 1973 presidential firing of Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox precipitated a majority of the resolutions, the specific charges listed against the President confirmed the fact that the dismissal of Mr. Cox was merely the culminating episode in a series of confrontations between the White House and Congress.

Aside from those relating to the firing of Mr. Cox and obstruction of the Watergate investigation, other charges accused President Nixon of:

<sup>19</sup> The first Nixon impeachment resolution offered in the 93d Congress was introduced by Representative Robert F. Drinan (D-Mass.) on July 31, 1973.

(1) Violating the first amendment in the establishment of the "plumbers" unit.

(2) Aiding and abetting the "plumbers."

(3) Concealing the felonies committed by the "plumbers."

(4) Authorizing Government agencies to violate the constitutional rights of citizens (the so-called "Houston Plan"), knowing the conduct he was authorizing was illegal.

(5) Obstructing the proper administration of justice in the Ellsberg case.

(6) Negligently failing to supervise the collection, and permitting illegal use, of campaign funds in his 1972 campaign.

(7) Illegally impounding $40 million in funds appropriated by Congress for various domestic programs.

(8) Dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity despite legislation extending its authority until June 30, 1974.

(9) Usurping the war-making and appropriation powers of Congress by authorizing the secret bombing of neutral Cambodia and falsification of military reports, and by concealing the bombing from Congress and the American people.

Following the introduction of a series of nine resolutions relating to the impeachment of the President on October 23, 1973, the House Judiciary Committee was formally granted jurisdiction over the inquiry into the charges. By the beginning of the following week, Judiciary Committee Chairman Peter W. Rodino, Jr., had been given the power to issue subpoenas relative to the impeachment investigation. On November 15, 1973, the House passed House Resolution 702 by a vote of 367-51 providing $1 million for the Judiciary Committee staff investigation into whether proper grounds existed for the impeachment of the President. Organization of a special impeachment inquiry staff began in earnest shortly thereafter.

On February 6, 1974, the House passed House Resolution 803 by a vote of 410-4 authorizing and directing the Judiciary Committee "to investigate fully and completely whether sufficient grounds exist for the House of Representatives to exercise its constitutional power to impeach Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States of America." The resolution also granted subpoena power to the committee, and specifically authorized use of the funds made available under House Resolution 702 to carry out the investigation.

On March 3, 1974, the President's attorney, James D. St. Clair, disclosed before Judge John J. Sirica of the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, and principal jurist in the Watergate trials, that President Nixon had decided to provide the Judiciary Committee all the tapes and documents submitted to the Watergate grand jury. But the event overshadowing all else during the month of March had occurred 2 days earlier: seven former White House aides or officials of President Nixon's Reelection Committee were indicted by the Watergate grand jury for Watergate-related activities. Of special significance to the Judiciary Committee was a secret report and a briefcase of evidence gathered by the grand jury allegedly pertaining to President Nixon's possible obstruction of justice in the case. It was the intent of the jury that the report and briefcase be turned over to the impeachment inquiry staff. Three weeks later on March 26, after district and appellate court decisions, the committee finally received the material.

Meanwhile, the newspapers of the country were flooded with articles addressing the question of exactly what was an impeachable offense. Near the end of February, the constitutional arguments relative to what the Framers of the Constitution meant by the phrase "other high crimes and misdemeanors" in the impeachment clause of article II, section 4, became, at least momentarily, the most important consideration in the inquiry. From the beginning, one of the principal objectives of the impeachment inquiry had been to define the constitutional grounds for impeachment. On March 20, 1974, the Judiciary Committee staff released a study entitled the "Constitutional Grounds for Impeachment," which concluded that a President could be impeached and removed from the office for offenses against the public interest which are not necessarily crimes in the legal sense. A White House staff report released less than a week later argued that only criminal offenses that are found in the Constitution or in the laws of the United States and that are of a serious and public or governmental nature are grounds for impeaching the President. A third staff report on impeachment prepared by the Department of Justice at approximately the same time as the White House and Judiciary reports concluded that there were persuasive arguments for the narrow view that a criminal action is required as well as the broad view that certain noncriminal "political" offenses may justify impeachment. President Nixon had early joined in the discussion on February 25, when he stated, during the course of his first press conference in 4 months, that the Constitution was "very precise" in specifying that impeachment should depend upon proof of criminal conduct.

On April 3, the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation reported its findings that President Nixon owed $476,431, including interest, on back taxes for 1969 through 1972.

On April 11, the Judiciary Committee, exercising the power granted to it by House Resolution 803, issued a subpoena to President Nixon. Demanded by the subpoena were tapes and other records of 42 Presidential conversations, which the committee had sought to obtain from the White House for nearly two months. Five days after the issuance of the subpoena, Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski asked for a subpoena ordering President Nixon to produce tape recordings, dictabelts, and memos involving 64 White House conversations. Ultimately this request would, on appeal, reach the Supreme Court.

Less than two weeks later, the Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry staff, in a status report released on April 24, detailed its work since the release of a similar report on March 1 and identified the areas under investigation at that time. Also noted within the report were 12 allegations which the staff felt did not warrant further investigation. Among the items which should be dismissed according to the staff report were the bombing of Cambodia, the dismantling of the Office of Economic Opportunity, and the impoundment of appropriated funds. Allegations considered by the impeachment inquiry staff but not detailed in the report included:

(1) Domestic surveillance activities by or at the direction of the White House.

(2) Intelligence activities conducted by or at the direction of the White House anticipating the Presidential election of 1972.

(3) The Watergate break-in and related activities, including alleged reports by persons in the White House and others to "cover up" such activities, and other related matters.

Allegations continuing to occupy the attention of the impeachment inquiry staff and discussed at some length in the report were:

(4) Improprieties in connection with the personal finances of the President.

(5) Efforts by the White House to use agencies of the executive branch for political purposes, and alleged White House involvement with election campaign contributions.

(6) Illegal campaign contributions received from labor unions.

(7) Illegal campaign contributions received from foreign nationals in exchange for promises of favorable treatment by Government agencies.

President Nixon, in a conciliatory response on April 4, stated that he would pay the back taxes. On the evening of April 29, in a precedent-setting speech to the Nation, the President announced that he would turn over to the House impeachment investigators—and make public—edited transcripts of White House conversations that "will tell it all" and prove him innocent in the Watergate affair. The President further explained that verification of the transcripts could be made by Chairman Rodino and the ranking minority member of the committee, Representative Edward Hutchinson, by their personally listening to the tapes at the White House. If additional questions should still exist, the President would be willing to submit to written interrogatories.

A few hours prior to the President's televised address, the House approved House Resolution 1027 providing an appropriation of $733,759.31 for continuation of the Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry. Two days later, the Judiciary Committee by a narrow vote decided to inform the President by letter that the edited transcripts did not satisfy the demands of the subpoena issued to him on April 11.

On May 7, presidential counsel St. Clair confirmed earlier reports that President Nixon would not comply with further requests for taped White House conversations by either the Special Watergate Prosecutor or the House Judiciary Committee. He told reporters that "the only basis for further requests would be a desire by some to erode the Presidency and the President is not going to stand for it." Less than 48 hours later, the Judiciary Committee opened its hearings to determine whether the President of the United States should be impeached.

For the next 3 months, the committee, meeting in executive session, heard from members of the inquiry staff, presidential counsel St. Clair, who earlier had been granted permission to participate in this phase of the investigation, and a number of witnesses. As events developed amidst these proceedings, the committee on three separate occasions sought unsuccessfully to subpoena additional White House tapes.

On July 19, 1974, both of the committee's senior counsel argued that by virtue of the evidence presented during the hearings a recommendation for a Senate impeachment trial was warranted.

On the evening of Wednesday, July 24, for the first time in history, formal deliberations of a Congressional committee considering arguments for and against impeachment of an American President were broadcast over the Nation's television and radio networks. Earlier in the day, the Supreme Court by a unanimous vote of 8 to 0 (Associate Justice William H. Rehnquist having disqualified himself from participation in the case) upheld the decision of U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica that 64 Watergate tapes requested by Watergate Special Prosecutor Jaworski for use in the September trial of the Watergate defendants had to be released by the White House.

Three days later, on July 27, the Judiciary Committee by a vote of 27 to 11 approved an article of impeachment which specified that President Nixon had personally engaged in a "course of conduct" which "prevented, obstructed and impeded the administration of justice" in the investigation of the Watergate break-in. After a Sunday recess, the committee on Monday, July 29, discussed and then voted 28 to 10 to recommend a second impeachment article in which Mr. Nixon was charged with "repeatedly" engaging in conduct "violating the constitutional rights of citizens, impairing the due and proper administration of justice and the conduct of lawful inquiries, or contravening the laws governing agencies of the executive branch and the purposes of the agencies." A third article approved the following day charged that the President had "failed without lawful cause or excuse" to honor subpoenas issued by the committee.

The text of the resolution and the articles of impeachment adopted by the Committee on the Judiciary stated:

RESOLUTION

Impeaching Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States, of high crimes and misdemeanors.

Resolved, That Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States, is impeached for high crimes and misdemeanors and that the following articles of impeachment be exhibited to the Senate:

Articles of impeachment exhibited by the House of Representatives of the United States of America in the name of itself and of all of the people of the United States of America, against Richard M. Nixon, President of the United States of America, in maintenance and support of its impeachment against him for high crimes and misdemeanors.

ARTICLE I

In his conduct of the office of President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, in violation of his constitutional oath faithfully to execute the office of President of the United States and, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States, and in violation of his constitutional duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, has prevented, obstructed, and impeded the administration of justice, in that:

On June 17, 1972, and prior thereto, agents of the Committee for the Re-election of the President committed unlawful entry of the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee in Washington, District of Columbia, for the purpose of securing political intelligence. Subsequent thereto, Richard M. Nixon, using the powers of his high office, engaged personally and through his subordinates and agents, in a course of conduct or plan designed to delay, impede, and obstruct the investigation of such unlawful entry; to cover up, conceal and protect those responsible; and to conceal the existence and scope of other unlawful covert activities.

The means used to implement this course of conduct or plan included one or more of the following:

- (1) making or causing to be made false or misleading statements to lawfully authorized investigative officers and employees of the United States;
- (2) withholding relevant and material evidence or information from lawfully authorized investigative officers and employees of the United States;
- (3) approving, condoning, acquiescing in, and counseling witnesses with respect to the giving of false or misleading statements to lawfully authorized investigative officers and employees of the United States and false or misleading testimony in duly instituted judicial and congressional proceedings;
- (4) interfering or endeavoring to interfere with the conduct of investigations by the Department of Justice of the United States, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Office of Watergate Special Prosecution Force, and Congressional Committees;
- (5) approving, condoning, and acquiescing in, the surreptitious payment of substantial sums of money for the purpose of obtaining the silence or influencing the testimony of witnesses, potential witnesses or individuals who participated in such unlawful entry and other illegal activities;
- (6) endeavoring to misuse the Central Intelligence Agency, an agency of the United States;
- (7) disseminating information received from officers of the Department of Justice of the United States to subjects of investigations conducted by lawfully authorized investigative officers and employees of the United States, for the purpose of aiding and assisting such subjects in their attempts to avoid criminal liability;
- (8) making false or misleading public statements for the purpose of deceiving the people of the United States into believing that a thorough and complete investigation had been conducted with respect to allegations of misconduct on the part of personnel of the executive branch of the United States and personnel of the Committee for the Re-election of the President, and that there was no involvement of such personnel in such misconduct; or
- (9) endeavoring to cause prospective defendants, and individuals duly tried and convicted, to expect favored treatment and consideration in return for their silence or false testimony, or rewarding individuals for their silence or false testimony.

In all of this, Richard M. Nixon has acted in a manner contrary to his trust as President and subversive of constitutional government, to the great prejudice of the cause of law and justice and to the manifest injury of the people of the United States.

Wherefore Richard M. Nixon, by such conduct, warrants impeachment and trial, and removal from office.

ARTICLE II

Using the powers of the office of President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, in violation of his constitutional oath faithfully to execute the office of President of the United States and, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States, and in disregard of his constitutional duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, has repeatedly engaged in conduct violating the constitutional rights of citizens, impairing the due and proper administration of justice and the conduct of lawful inquiries, or contravening the laws governing agencies of the executive branch and the purposes of these agencies.

This conduct has included one or more of the following:

- (1) He has, acting personally and through his subordinates and agents, endeavored to obtain from the Internal Revenue Service, in violation of the constitutional rights of citizens, confidential information contained in income tax returns for purposes not authorized by law, and to cause, in violation of the constitutional rights of citizens, income tax audits or other income tax investigations to be initiated or conducted in a discriminatory manner.

(2) He misused the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Secret Service, and other executive personnel, in violation or disregard of the constitutional rights of citizens, by directing or authorizing such agencies or personnel to conduct or continue electronic surveillance or other investigations for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or any other lawful function of his office; he did direct, authorize, or permit the use of information obtained thereby for purposes unrelated to national security, the enforcement of laws, or any other lawful function of his office; and he did direct the concealment of certain records made by the Federal Bureau of Investigation of electronic surveillance.

(3) He has, acting personally and through his subordinates and agents, in violation or disregard of the constitutional rights of citizens, authorized and permitted to be maintained a secret investigative unit within the office of the President, financed in part with money derived from campaign contributions, which unlawfully utilized the resources of the Central Intelligence Agency, engaged in covert and unlawful activities, and attempted to prejudice the constitutional right of an accused to a fair trial.

(4) He has failed to take care that the laws were faithfully executed by failing to act when he knew or had reason to know that his close subordinate endeavored to impede and frustrate lawful inquiries by duly constituted executive, judicial, and legislative entities concerning the unlawful entry into the headquarters of the Democratic National Committee, and the cover-up thereof, and concerning other unlawful activities, including those relating to the confirmation of Richard Kleindienst as Attorney General of the United States, the electronic surveillance of private citizens, the break-in into the offices of Dr. Lewis Fielding, and the campaign financing practices of the Committee to Re-elect the President.

(5) In disregard of the rule of law, he knowingly misused the executive power by interfering with agencies of the executive branch, including the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Criminal Division, and the Office of Watergate Special Prosecution Force, of the Department of Justice, and the Central Intelligence Agency, in violation of his duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

In all of this, Richard M. Nixon has acted in a manner contrary to his trust as President and subversive of constitutional government, to the great prejudice of the cause of law and justice and to the manifest injury of the people of the United States.

Wherefore Richard M. Nixon, by such conduct, warrants impeachment and trial, and removal from office.

ARTICLE III

In his conduct of the office of President of the United States, Richard M. Nixon, contrary to his oath faithfully to execute the office of President of the United States and, to the best of his ability, preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States, and in violation of his constitutional duty to take care that the laws be faithfully executed, has failed without lawful cause or excuse to produce papers and things as directed by duly authorized subpoenas issued by the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives on April 11, 1974, May 15, 1974, May 30, 1974, and June 24, 1974, and willfully disobeyed such subpoenas. The subpoenaed papers and things were deemed necessary by the Committee in order to resolve by direct evidence fundamental, factual questions relating to Presidential direction, knowledge, or approval of actions demonstrated by other evidence to be substantial grounds for impeachment of the President. In refusing to produce these papers and things, Richard M. Nixon, substituting his judgment as to what materials were necessary for the inquiry, interposed the powers of the Presidency against the lawful subpoenas of the House of Representatives, thereby assuming to himself functions and judgments necessary to the exercise of the sole power of impeachment vested by the Constitution in the House of Representatives.

In all of this, Richard M. Nixon has acted in a manner contrary to his trust as President and subversive of constitutional government, to the great prejudice of the cause of law and justice, and to the manifest injury of the people of the United States.

Wherefore Richard M. Nixon, by such conduct, warrants impeachment and trial, and removal from office.

Having completed the hearing phase of its impeachment inquiry before a TV audience estimated unofficially at 70 million viewers, the committee began the task of drafting a report supporting the articles which would be presented to the full membership of the House within approximately two and a half weeks.

As the leadership of the House began preparations for a floor debate on the articles of impeachment, events during the first 9 days of August ended the Nixon Presidency. The month began with pronouncements from the White House that the President would continue his "political struggle." On August 5, however, Nixon's remaining support in Congress began to crumble following his disclosure that 6 days after the Watergate burglary he had ordered a halt to the investigation of the break-in for political as well as national security reasons and he had kept this information from his lawyers and supporters on the Judiciary Committee. In the face of resignation demands by his strongest supporters, President Nixon the following morning told his cabinet that he did not intend to resign and believed that the constitutional process should be allowed to run its course.

By August 7, the principal topic of discussion in Washington was when, not if, the President would resign. That afternoon, the President met with Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott, Senator Barry Goldwater, and House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes to discuss his precarious position. Apparently the President's decision to resign was solidified later that evening.

In a televised speech from the oval office, Mr. Nixon, at 9 o'clock the following evening, announced that he intended to resign as President of the United States because "it is evident to me that I no longer have a strong enough political base in the Congress to justify [the] effort [to stay in office]." He made no mention of impeachment, but the significance of the Judiciary Committee investigation was self-evident.

President Nixon formally resigned in a letter to the Secretary of State some 14 hours later, shortly after 11:30 a.m. on August 9, 1974. Gerald Rudolph Ford automatically became the Nation's 38th President at that time. Minutes later President Ford was formally sworn in by Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Warren E. Burger. President Ford observed to those gathered for his inauguration that "our long national nightmare is over. Our Constitution works. Our great Republic is a government of laws and not of men."

By choosing to resign rather than face almost sure impeachment by the House and possible conviction in the Senate, Mr. Nixon brought to an end the Congressional proceedings surrounding Watergate. Eleven days after President Ford assumed the Presidency, the House of Representatives formally concluded the impeachment inquiry of Richard M. Nixon by overwhelmingly accepting the Judiciary Committee's report recommending impeachment by a vote of 412 to 3.

A calm settled over the White House and the Nation for the first month of the Ford administration. On the morning of Sunday, September 8, however, President Ford announced that he was granting a full and unconditional pardon to former President Nixon for any Federal crimes he may have committed while in office. A tremendous outpouring of public and Congressional criticism ensued and some Congressmen even suggested that formal impeachment proceedings against Mr. Nixon should be reopened. Judiciary Committee Chairman Rodino, however, declared the next day that "impeachment is dead" and said he had no intention of renewing the inquiry.

The Committee and Vice Presidential Nominations Under the 25th Amendment

When Spiro Agnew resigned as Vice President on October 10, 1973, the Nation was without a Vice President for the 17th time in its history. For the first time, however, the contingency of such a vacancy had been addressed by the Constitution.

The Twenty-fifth Amendment to the Constitution had been adopted by the Congress in 1965 and ratified by the States in 1967. Section 2 of the amendment provides:

Whenever there is a vacancy in the Office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both Houses of Congress.

Acting under the mandate of the amendment, the Speaker of the House referred to the full Judiciary Committee the matter of President Nixon's nomination of Gerald Ford to be the 40th Vice President. Within 24 hours of that nomination, the committee had assembled an experienced investigative team to pursue an exhaustive inquiry into Mr. Ford's qualifications and fitness for high office.

The inquiry was conducted both in Washington and in Grand Rapids, Mich., the nominee's home town. Every agency of the Federal Government was contacted and a request went out for all files in their possession relating to the nominee. The Judiciary Committee staff assembled voluminous materials regarding relevant financial and personal considerations, conducted an independent audit of the nominee's tax returns and interviewed hundreds of individuals as part of its investigation.

Between November 15 and November 26, the full committee held 6 days and one evening of hearings into the nomination, receiving testimony from a dozen witnesses, including Mr. Ford on four separate occasions.

On Thursday, November 29, after receiving more than 36 hours of testimony, the committee voted to report the nomination favorably to the full House, which agreed to the nomination on December 6.

One year later, on December 19, 1974, the full House confirmed President Ford's nomination of Nelson Rockefeller to be Vice President.

The Rockefeller nomination had been referred to the Judiciary Committee on August 20, 1974, and extensive investigative efforts and thorough hearings by the committee followed referral. A hearing record of more than 1,400 pages covering 9 days and several evenings of public testimony by two dozen witnesses was compiled before the committee made its favorable recommendation to the House on December 12, 1974.

During the 80th Congress the House Committee on the Judiciary had referred to it a total of 2,946 bills, of which 2,179 (74 percent) were private bills relating to claims or to immigration and naturalization, and 767 (26 percent) were public bills. Of the 8,381 bills, joint resolutions, concurrent resolutions, and simple resolutions introduced in the House, 2,747 (33 percent) were referred to this committee.

Of the 767 public bills referred to the committee, 61 (8 percent) became public laws. One public bill received a pocket veto, and no such bills received a direct veto.

A total of 1,346 private claims bills, including those originating in both Houses, were referred to the committee. Of these, 272 (20 percent) became private laws, 6 became public laws, 450 were reported to the House, 130 died in the Senate, 20 were vetoed, 13 were pocket vetoed, and 9 were recommitted.

A total of 833 private immigration and naturalization bills were referred to the committee during the 80th Congress. Of these, 121 (15 percent) became private laws, 3 were vetoed and 1 was pocket vetoed.

From an overall standpoint, of the 2,747 House bills, both public and private, referred to the committee, 456 (17 percent) were enacted into law. In accomplishing this task, the full committee held 71 executive meetings, and the 8 subcommittees held numerous executive sessions and conducted 342 hearings.

One of the most far-reaching achievements of the Judiciary Committee during this Congress was the completion of its work on the general revision and codification of the following United States Code titles:

Title 1, "General Provisions"—Public Law 278.

Title 4, "Flag and Seal, etc."—Public Law 279.

Title 6, "Official and Penal Bonds"—Public Law 280.

Title 9, "Arbitration"—Public Law 282.

Title 17, "Copyrights"—Public Law 281.

Title 18, "Crimes and Criminal Procedure"—Public Law 772.

Title 28, "Judiciary"—Public Law 773.

Another major legislative accomplishment of the committee was the passage of the constitutional amendment on the limitation of presidential tenure, the Presidential Succession Law (Public Law 199), which was subsequently passed by Congress and by the end of the 80th Congress had been ratified by 21 States.

Among the other major pieces of legislation with which the committee dealt and which were enacted into law, were:

Public Laws 29, 145, and 188—To extend title III, Second War Powers Act.

Public Law 49—Portal-to-Portal Pay Act.

Public Law 239—Termination of Emergency War Powers.

Public Law 774—Displaced Persons.

Public Law 863—Deportation of Aliens.

The House Committee on the Judiciary had referred to its 4,598 bills and resolutions during the 81st Congress. Of this number, 1,055 were public bills and resolutions and 3,543 were private bills and resolutions. Of the public measures referred to the committee, 99 became law, and of the private measures the committee considered, 988 became law.

During this Congress, the committee held hearings on the controversial issue of Federal versus state ownership and control of tidelands, monopoly and antitrust problems, bills tightening control and supervision of aliens in custody pending deportation, and anti-lynching measures.

Among the major pieces of legislation considered by the committee were:

Public Law 899—The Clayton Antitrust Act.

Public Law 513—To enhance the security of the United States by preventing disclosures of information concerning the cryptographic systems and the communications intelligence activities of the United States.

Public Law 555—To amend the Displaced Persons Act of 1948.
 Public Law 717—To permit the admission of alien spouses and minor children of citizen members of the U.S. Armed Forces.
 Public Law 285—To provide for the care and custody of insane persons charged with or convicted of offenses against the United States.

During the 82d Congress 10,055 bills were introduced in the House of Representatives. Of the total, 4,836 bills were referred to the House Judiciary Committee. The committee received for consideration 908 public bills and resolutions and 3,928 private bills and resolutions. Seventy public bills were enacted into law and 976 private bills were enacted.

The work of the Judiciary Committee was assigned to five standing subcommittees and five special subcommittees. The standing subcommittees were designated by number and had a special jurisdiction as well as a general jurisdiction over bills referred to it. The five special subcommittees included: Special Subcommittee on Reapportionment, Special Subcommittee to Consider the Appointment and Powers of the Special Prosecutor, Special Subcommittee Dealing with Legislation Pertaining to Seizure of the Steel Industry, Special Subcommittee to Conduct a Preliminary Investigation of Judge Philip B. Sullivan, and Special Subcommittee to Investigate the Department of Justice and the Office of the Attorney General.

The committee, working through these subcommittees, continued several studies begun during previous Congresses. The Subcommittee on Study of Monopoly Powers continued its review of monopoly power in the steel and newsprint industries. The Special Subcommittee to Investigate the Department of Justice and the Office of the Attorney General conducted a thorough investigation in which one area of concern was the allegation that the Department of Justice had failed to prosecute possible violations of the antitrust laws involving the four largest corporations engaged in the manufacture and distribution of liquor.

Two important pieces of legislation considered by the Judiciary Committee and enacted into law during the 82d Congress were the Immigration and Nationality Act (Public Law 414) and the Codification and Revision of the Patent Laws (Public Law 593).

A total of 5,950 bills and resolutions were referred to the House Committee on the Judiciary during the 83d Congress. Of this number 1,011 were public bills and resolutions and 4,939 were private bills and resolutions. The committee considered 82 public bills which were enacted into law.

The committee assigned its work mainly to the five standing subcommittees and the special subcommittees. The Special Subcommittee to Investigate the Department of Justice held extensive hearings and submitted reports with specific recommendations for legislation to improve the administration of the Department.

The Special Antitrust Subcommittee submitted its final report on the newsprint problem. In its report the subcommittee made a number of findings and recommendations concerning the expansion of newsprint production in the United States.

Some of the major legislation considered by this committee included:

Public Law 31—The Submerged Lands Act.

Public Law 203—The Refugee Relief Act of 1953.

Public Law 637—The Subversive Activities Control Act Amendments of 1954 (to outlaw the Communist Party).

Public Law 777—Espionage and Sabotage Act of 1954.

A review of the activities of the House Committee on the Judiciary during the 84th Congress reveals that of the 14,104 bills introduced in the House during that Congress 6,033 were referred to the committee. These included 1,214 public bills and resolutions and 4,819 private bills relating to claims or to immigration and naturalization. Of the 1,214 public bills referred to the committee, 90 were enacted into law.

During the 84th Congress, the committee dealt with legislation of vital importance to the Nation relating to such issues as civil rights, the strengthening of the antitrust laws, the automatic dealers franchise, the Federal Construction Contract Act, and the conflict between State and Federal jurisdictions.

In addition to the five standing subcommittees, the committee appointed three special subcommittees of particular note and significance.

The Special Subcommittee on Presidential Inability made an exhaustive study on how best to meet the situation arising when the President is unable to discharge the duties and powers of his office.

The Special Subcommittee on the Administrative Procedure Act directed its attention to a study concerning deviations from the Act. This study revealed instances where Congress had provided express exemptions from the requirements of the Act and in addition indicated some instances in which Congress had provided procedural requirements which were more strict than those prescribed.

The special subcommittee also assisted in the formulation of committee views on House Resolution 462, a resolution to create a new standing committee on administrative procedure in the House of Representatives.

A special subcommittee was also created to hear the complaints concerning a controversy between the press of the Boston area and the Shubert Theatrical Organization. The subcommittee investigated the possibility of a violation of the constitutional provisions guaranteeing freedom of the press. It found no actual violations.

Of the total of 14,013 measures introduced in the House of Representatives during the 85th Congress, 6,224 were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary (39.8 percent). Of these 6,224 bills, 1,411 were public bills and resolutions and 4,813 were private claims and immigration bills. Of the legislation processed by the committee, 96 bills were enacted into public law and 591 were enacted into private law.

In accomplishing its legislative tasks the full committee held 59 executive sessions during the course of the Congress and worked through its five standing subcommittees and four special subcommittees.

The Special Subcommittee on Study of Presidential Inability continued its investigation begun in the 84th Congress.

The Special Subcommittee on the Operation of Submerged Lands Legislation conducted a study and analysis of the problems arising from the operation and administration of those laws.

The Special Subcommittee To Study Supreme Court Decisions was authorized to conduct an inquiry and make findings and recommendations with reference to questions raised by certain decisions of the Supreme Court, rendered during the October 1956 term, which affected the power of Congress to investigate Federal laws relating to subversive activities and the enforcement of Federal criminal laws.

The Special Subcommittee on Administrative Procedure had referred to it several comprehensive bills dealing with such problems as pay for hearing examiners, legal career service, and admission to practice before Federal agencies.

Some of the major legislation considered by the Committee on the Judiciary and enacted into law included:

Public Law 85-306—To amend the act of January 12, 1951, as amended, to continue the provisions of title II of the First War Powers Act, 1941.

Public Law 85-315—To provide means of further securing and protecting the civil rights of persons within the jurisdiction of the United States.

Public Law 85-316—To amend the Immigration and Nationality Act, and for other purposes.

The committee also considered several bills for the revision of the U.S. Code which were enacted during the 85th Congress.

The Committee on the Judiciary made an impressive record during the 87th Congress. Of the 15,571 bills and resolutions introduced in the House, 5,478 bills were placed before the committee. The number included 1,600 public bills and resolutions of which 119 were enacted into law. The Judiciary Committee considered 3,878 private claims and immigration bills of which 654 were enacted: 446 private immigration laws and 208 private claim laws.

Significant contributions were made by the Special Subcommittee on State Taxation of Interstate Commerce, which continued its study of all matters pertaining to taxation by the States of income derived from interstate commerce, the Immigration and Nationality Subcommittee, which worked on a population study, the Special Subcommittee on Administrative Procedures and the Antitrust Subcommittee, which conducted an extensive investigatory program.

Legislation of national significance considered by the Judiciary Committee and enacted into law during the 87th Congress included:

Public Law 87-510—Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962.

Public Law 87-748—To amend chapter 85 of title 28 of the United States Code relating to the jurisdiction of the U.S. District Court. This law made it possible to bring actions against Government officials and agencies in U.S. district courts outside the District of Columbia, which, because of certain existing limitations on jurisdiction and venue, could formerly be brought only in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

Two antitrust proposals of paramount impact were enacted:

Public Law 87-664, authorizing the Attorney General to compel the production of documentary evidence required in civil investigations for the enforcement of the antitrust laws, and Public Law 87-331, authorizing leagues of professional football, baseball, basketball, and hockey teams to enter into certain television contracts.

Another notable contribution was the enactment of Public Law 87-849, which consolidated and revised the conflict of interest and bribery laws covering Federal employees.

The committee also handled several pieces of legislation concerning the interstate transportation of wagering paraphernalia, bets, wagers, and related information and the transmission by wire of bets, wagers, and other information concerning gambling.

The workload of the Committee on the Judiciary steadily increased during the 88th Congress. Of the 15,299 measures introduced in the House, 5,476 were referred to the Judiciary Committee for its consideration. Some 1,747 public bills and resolutions were referred to the committee of which 75 were enacted into law. The committee had referred to it 3,729 private bills of which 336 were enacted into law.

In addition to its normal workload, the committee also examined three constitutional issues of unusual importance: comprehensive civil rights legislation, constitutional proposals concerning the recitation of prayer and the reading of the Bible in public schools, and proposals to amend the Constitution relating to the apportionment of State legislatures.

The committee also considered legislative proposals to revise the Immigration and Nationality Act to eliminate the national origins system.

The subcommittees continued work on several important studies. The population study which began in the previous Congress was completed by the Subcommittee on Immigration and Nationality. A comprehensive report on "State Income Taxation Affecting Mercantile and Manufacturing Corporations in Interstate Commerce," was also published.

During the 90th Congress the Committee on the Judiciary again played a major role in formulating significant legislation. Of the 24,227 bills and resolutions introduced in the House during this Congress, 9,715 were referred to the committee. Some 1,002 public and private bills were enacted during this Congress, of which 406 had been referred to the committee. This number included 74 public bills and 332 private bills. The subcommittees and full committee met in public and executive sessions a total of 385 times.

One of the most far-reaching achievements of the Judiciary Committee was the completion of its work on the general revision of the copyright laws, H.R. 2512. This bill passed the House, but action was not completed in the Senate.

Some of the major legislation considered by the committee during the 90th Congress included:

Public Law 90-123—To amend chapter 73, Title 18, United States Code, to prohibit the obstruction of criminal investigations of the United States.

Public Law 90-351—The Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

Public Law 90-198—To extend the Civil Rights Commission.

House Joint Resolution 396—To amend the United States Constitution to provide for representation of the District of Columbia in Congress.

Public Law 90-618—To provide for better control of the interstate traffic in firearms.

H.R. 2158—The Interstate Taxation Act. This bill was passed by the House but was not acted upon by the Senate. This measure grew out of 5 years of study by the Special Subcommittee on State Taxation of Interstate Commerce. During the course of that study, the subcommittee issued four volumes of interim reports. In addition, the subcommittee held hearings which covered a period of about 3 months in the 89th Congress. Previous hearings had also been held in 1961 and 1962.

During the 91st Congress the Committee on the Judiciary had referred to 8,681 bills and resolutions, of which 2,895 were public bills and resolutions and 5,786 were private. There were 76 bills enacted into public law which received consideration by the committee, and 224 private laws which received committee consideration.

The committee held extensive hearings during its investigation of selected conglomerate corporations to determine the adequacy of existing antitrust laws in dealing with the rapid growth of conglomerates.

Among the major legislation considered by the committee was:

Public Law 91-272—To provide for the appointment of additional district judges.

Public Law 91-285—To extend the Voting Rights Act of 1965 with respect to the discriminatory use of tests.

Public Law 91-452—Relating to the control of organized crime.

Public Law 91-644—1970 Amendments to the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

* Plus amendments.

During the 92d Congress, the Committee on the Judiciary had referred to it 5,289 bills and resolutions. Of these, 2,536 were public bills and resolutions and 2,753 were private bills and resolutions. The committee considered 77 of the 607 bills which were enacted into public law in the 92d Congress.

Some of the significant activities of the committee during this Congress included hearings on: matters relating to corrections, particularly the Federal and State parole systems, equal rights for men and women, enforcement of the Voting Rights Act, Federal employment programs for the Spanish-speaking, gun control legislation, school busing, treatment and rehabilitation of narcotics addicts, capital punishment, and the antitrust laws and organized professional team sports, including consideration of the proposed merger of the American and National Basketball Associations.

Among the major pieces of legislation considered by the committee and enacted into law were:

Public Law 92-584—To amend section 301 of the Immigration and Nationality Act by changing the requirements for retention of U.S. citizenship of a child born abroad of a U.S. citizen parent and an alien parent.

Public Law 92-191—To prohibit the mailing of certain hazardous articles.

Public Law 92-269—To change the minimum age qualification for serving as a juror in Federal courts from 21 years of age to 18 years of age.

Public Law 92-293—To provide care for narcotic addicts and other drug dependent persons who are placed on probation, released on parole or mandatorily released.

Of paramount importance during this Congress was the Judiciary Committee's work on the proposed equal rights amendment to the Constitution. Twenty-one States had ratified the amendment at the end of the 92d Congress.

The Committee on the Judiciary had referred to its 3,738 bills and resolutions during the 93d Congress. Of this number 1,089 were private claims and immigration bills and 2,649 were public bills and resolutions. A total of 65 measures which received consideration from the committee were enacted into public law. Of the total private bills and resolutions which were referred to this committee during the 93d Congress, 385 were enacted.

The committee was called upon to exercise an extraordinary constitutional responsibility during this Congress: to investigate and report to the House whether sufficient grounds existed to impeach President Richard M. Nixon. During the impeachment inquiry (which commenced in December 1973 and was terminated in July 1974) the committee held extensive hearings and meetings, including 6 days of public televised debate in July 1974. The committee's investigative staff collected over 650 statements of information and over 7,200 pages of evidentiary material. The committee filed a detailed report in which it recommended to the House three articles of impeachment. Mr. Nixon resigned before the House was to vote on the question of impeachment.

The Judiciary Committee was also called upon to consider the nomination of Gerald R. Ford to be Vice President of the United States following the resignation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew on October 10, 1973. After a lengthy investigation the committee recommended that the nomination be approved.

Approximately one year later the committee was again called upon to consider a Vice Presidential nomination. Nelson A. Rockefeller was nominated to be Vice President by President Ford, and after a thorough investigation and hearings the committee recommended that this nomination also be approved.

The committee's consideration of the Ford and Rockefeller vice-presidential nominations represented the first times the 25th Amendment had been implemented.

Among the major pieces of legislation considered by the House Judiciary Committee during the 93d Congress were:

Public Law 93-83—To amend title I of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 to improve law enforcement and criminal justice.

Public Law 93-265—Relating to the constitutional rights of Indians.

Public Law 93-595—To establish rules of evidence for certain courts and proceedings.

Public Law 93-619—To assist in reducing crime and the danger of recidivism by requiring speedy trials and by strengthening the supervision over persons released pending trial.

In the 94th Congress, 2,951 bills and resolutions were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, of which 1,952 were public measures and 999 were private measures. The latter included 374 claims measures, 609 immigration and nationality bills, and 16 patent measures. Of the legislation considered by the committee, 48 bills became public law and 132 became private law.

A principal legislative achievement of the committee in the 94th Congress was the passage of the first general revision of the copyright law (Title 17, United States Code) since 1909. The new copyright law for the first time covers aspects of the electronic media.

A second major achievement was the revision of Chapter 9 of the Bankruptcy Act concerning municipal reorganization. The philosophical, constitutional, and economic basis underlying our bankruptcy law was thoroughly examined during the consideration of this legislation.

One of the most effective civil rights laws ever passed, "The Voting Rights Act of 1965," was extended for seven years. Special ten-year provisions relating to new geographic areas were included to insure the voting rights of language minority citizens. In addition, literacy tests were permanently barred on a nationwide basis.

The most significant antitrust legislation since the Celler-Kefauver Amendments of 1950 was also passed, the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976. The Act authorizes the Department of Justice to issue a Civil Investigative Demand (CID) and antitrust investigators are given the authority to inquire into any activities in preparation for a merger, acquisition, joint venture, or similar transaction which, if completed, may violate the antitrust laws. A provision requires pre-merger notification and waiting requirements prior to a merger occurring. The parens patriae section of the bill authorizes states' attorneys general to sue for damages under section 4 of the Clayton Act on behalf of persons injured by antitrust violations.

During the 94th Congress, the committee also successfully processed legislation authorizing the United States to render assistance for the transportation, temporary care, and resettlement of Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees.

The first major reform in this country's immigration policy since 1965 occurred with the enactment of a bill which established a preference system to govern immigration from the Western Hemisphere.

The "Public Safety Officers' Benefits Act of 1976" culminated seven years of legislative activity. This law provides a $50,000 death benefit to the surviving dependents of policemen and firemen who are killed in the line of duty.

The committee also reported a major amendment to the Administrative Procedures Act, requiring that all meetings of agencies held by a collegial body of two or more members shall be open to the public.

Another committee achievement was the enactment of legislation which terminated previous declarations of national emergency and abolished numerous powers granted to the Executive branch under these declarations, and which provided orderly procedures for declaring and terminating a state of national emergency in the future.

Enactment of another public law authorized federal courts in their discretion to issue the payment of attorney's fees to prevailing parties in civil rights cases.

* Voting rights for the District of Columbia.

The Committee on the Judiciary had referred to it 3,051 bills and resolutions during the 95th Congress. Of this number, 2,013 were public bills and resolutions and 1,038 were private bills and resolutions. A total of 54 measures which received consideration by the committee were enacted into public law; and a total of 161 measures considered by the committee became private law.

Perhaps the most noteworthy work of the committee in the 95th Congress involved its consideration of the first authorization bill for funding for the Department of Justice. As a result of Public Law 94-503, funds may be appropriated for the Justice Department only if they have been specifically authorized by legislation for that fiscal year. The first authorization bill for the department pursuant to the new law authorized appropriations for fiscal year 1979.

The Judiciary Committee approached its newly-established authorization function in a deliberate and systematic manner. It conducted 9 days of hearings, receiving testimony from public witnesses and from officials in every agency and division within the Department of Justice seeking funds for fiscal year 1979. Upon completion of the hearings the committee spent three days marking up the authorizing legislation and on April 26, 1978, the committee by a vote of 30-2 favorably reported the bill H.R. 12005 to the House.

Numerous public laws were also enacted during this Congress on a wide variety of subjects. Among the more prominent were the following:

A major committee achievement of this Congress was the enactment of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, the first major revision of the bankruptcy laws, (Title 11, United States Code) in 40 years. It covered all areas of bankruptcy law including the court and administrative structure for handling bankruptcy cases, which have outnumbered all other Federal civil and criminal cases combined in recent years. (Public Law 95-598).

Two pieces of legislation involving Constitutional amendments were approved by the committee. One was H.J. Res. 554, a resolution to amend the Constitution to provide for representation of the District of Columbia in the Congress. It was considered and passed by the House and the Senate, and was sent to the States for ratification.

The committee also approved H.J. Res. 638, to extend the ratification period of the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to a total of 14 years from the date it was initially passed by the Congress. The resolution subsequently passed full House and the Senate.

Legislation was also enacted to replace the two existing hemispheric immigration ceilings with one world-wide ceiling of 290,000, and to create a Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy. The Commission was charged with studying the body of law relating to these subjects and to consider their social and economic impact on this country. The Commission was directed to present a complete set of legislative and administrative recommendations to the Congress by September 1980. (Public Law 95-412).

The committee additionally processed legislation to provide for implementation of treaties for the transfer of offenders to and from foreign countries. Basically, the treaties and the legislation authorize the voluntary transfer of convicted offenders serving time in a foreign country to their own country for completion of their sentences. (Public Law 95-144).

Another committee achievement was the enactment of legislation which authorizes the exclusion and deportation from the United States of persons who engaged in persecution on behalf of the Nazis during World War II. (Public Law 95-549).

Action on legislation relating to ethics and financial disclosure by Government officials was continued in the 95th Congress. Work on this subject culminated in passage of the Ethics in Government Act which created the Office of Ethics and provided requirements for financial disclosure by officials and employees in all three branches of Government. (Public Law 95-521).

The enactment of the Foreign Intelligence Surveillance Act concluded six years of national debate on the issue of foreign intelligence surveillance. The Act includes provisions for a judicial warrant for foreign intelligence surveillance and prescribes the creation of two new judicial panels to hear applications for court orders and to consider appeals involving those applications. (Public Law 95-511).

The Protection of Children Against Sexual Exploitation Act of 1977 was another important piece of legislation approved by the committee in the 95th Congress. This legislation prohibits the sexual exploitation of children and the transportation and dissemination in interstate commerce of photographs or films depicting such exploitation. (Public Law 95-225).

A law to curb interstate racketeering in the sale and distribution of cigarettes was also approved by the committee. This legislation attempts to eliminate cigarette smuggling by making it unlawful to ship, transport, receive or possess contraband (untaxed) cigarettes across state lines. (Public Law 95-575).

At the start of the 95th Congress, pursuant to a policy adopted in 1964, the Judicial Conference of the United States transmitted to the Congress its quadrennial survey of the judgeship needs of the United States District Courts and Courts of Appeals. Legislation for additional judgeships was subsequently introduced by Chairman Rodino.

When the Subcommittee on Monopolies and Commercial Law had finished its exhaustive inquiry into the current needs of the Federal courts, the full committee considered the subcommittee's recommendation and ultimately reported H.R. 7843 as amended. Following approval of different versions by the House and Senate, the conferees agreed to provide 117 new district judgeships and 35 new circuit judgeships. The House and Senate approved the Conference Report and the President signed the bill on October 20, 1978. (Public Law 95-486).

During the 96th Congress, 2,125 bills and resolutions were referred to the Judiciary Committee. Of these, 1,264 were public measures and 861 were private ones. Of the private measures, the committee considered 317 dealing with claims, 540 on the subject of immigration and nationality, and 4 on patents. Forty-seven measures which came before the committee became public law and 115 became private law.

In the 96th Congress, in addition to its consideration of legislation authorizing appropriations for the Department of Justice, the Judiciary Committee passed several important bills which were subsequently enacted into law. Among the more significant were the following:

Legislation was enacted to implement the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977, and to provide for the operation and maintenance of the Panama Canal. It was signed into law on September 29, 1979. (Public Law 96-70).

The committee also processed legislation to make technical and conforming changes in the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, changes which were prompted by problems encountered by those charged with the administration and implementation of the law's financial disclosure and revolving door requirements. It was signed by the President on June 13, 1979. (Public Law 96-19).

The enactment of the Magistrate Act of 1979 culminated more than four years work on the need to increase and formalize the jurisdiction of magistrates in the Federal courts. The legislation passed will improve access to the Federal courts for the American public by enlarging the civil and criminal jurisdiction of United States magistrates. It was signed by the President on October 10, 1979. (Public Law 96-82).

The committee also restructured the Federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration to assist state and local governments in improving the quality of their justice systems. This legislation was signed by the President on December 27, 1979. (Public Law 96-157).

Legislation was approved by the committee to facilitate the resolution of consumer controversies. This bill, referred to as The Dispute Resolution Act, established a national goal for the development and maintenance of effective, fair, inexpensive and expeditious mechanisms to handle consumer disputes. This legislation was signed by the President on February 12, 1980. (Public Law 96-190).

The committee responded to increasing refugee problems by approving the Refugee Act of 1980, amending the Immigration and Nationality Act. It revised procedures for the admission of refugees and amended the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 to establish a more uniform basis for the provision of domestic assistance to refugees. It was signed by the President on March 17, 1980. (Public Law 96-212).

Another committee achievement was the enactment of legislation to authorize actions for redress in cases involving deprivations of rights of institutionalized persons secured or protected by the Constitution or laws of the United States. It was signed by the President on May 23, 1980. (Public Law 96-247).

The committee amended Public Law 90-331 to provide for personal protection of the spouses of major Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates during the 120 day period before a general Presidential election. It was signed by the President on August 11, 1980. (Public Law 96-329).

Legislation was enacted by the committee to expedite and reduce the cost of antitrust litigation. This Antitrust Procedural Improvements Act of 1979 was signed by the President on September 12, 1980. (Public Law 96-349).

Legislation was also processed by the committee to improve the Federal judicial machinery by clarifying and revising certain provisions of Title 28 of the United States Code relating to the judiciary and judicial review of international trade matters. This legislation, known as the Customs Courts Act of 1979, was signed by the President on October 10, 1980. (Public Law 96-417).

Legislation was processed by the committee to limit governmental search and seizure of documentary materials and to provide a remedy for persons aggrieved by violations of the provisions of this act. It was signed by the President on October 13, 1980. (Public Law 96-440).

The committee amended Title 28 of the United States Code to divide the fifth judicial circuit of the United States into two circuits. This Appellate Court Reorganization Act of 1980 was signed by the President on October 14, 1980.

Legislation was approved by the committee to provide certain pre-trial, trial and appellate procedures for criminal cases involving classified information (commonly referred to as "grey mail" situations). This Classified Information Procedures Act was signed by the President on October 15, 1980. (Public Law 96-456).

The committee approved legislation to establish a procedure for processing complaints directed against federal judges. This Judicial Conduct and Disability Act of 1979 was signed by the President on October 15, 1980. (Public Law 96-458).

The committee passed legislation to eliminate the amount in controversy requirement for Federal question jurisdiction in the Federal Question Jurisdictional Amendments Act of 1980. It was signed by the President on December 1, 1980. (Public Law 96-486).

The Clayton Act was amended by the committee to prohibit restrictions on the use of credit instruments in the purchase of gasohol through the Gasohol Competition Act of 1980. The President signed this legislation on December 2, 1980. (Public Law 96-493).

During the first session of the 97th Congress, a total of 1,368 bills and resolutions were referred to the Judiciary Committee. Of this number, 860 were public bills and resolutions and 508 were private legislative measures. Eleven bills and resolutions which received consideration by the committee were enacted into public law; an identical number became private law.

Several public laws were enacted during the first session of the 97th Congress on various legislative subjects. On two occasions, the House passed continuing resolutions providing for authorization for appropriation of funds for the Department of Justice (Public Laws 97-7 and 97-76). These continuing resolutions were necessary due to the failure of the Senate to take final action on the fiscal year 1982 authorization for the Department.

The committee approved the INS Efficiency bill, the purpose of which was to modify and clarify various provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act which have impeded the effective administration of the Act, and to eliminate those provisions which have been invalidated by the courts or which are outmoded or no longer necessary. The bill also obviates Congressional consideration of certain categories of private immigration bills. This bill was signed by the President on December 29, 1981. (Public Law 97-116).

The committee approved a House Joint Resolution which had been referred jointly to the Committee on Foreign Affairs and the Committee on the Judiciary, to proclaim Raoul Wallenberg as an honorary citizen of the United States and to request the President of the United States to ascertain from the Soviet Union Raoul Wallenberg's whereabouts and to secure his return to freedom. Mr. Wallenberg made extraordinary contributions during World War II in saving the lives of Hungarian Jews. On October 5, 1981, President Reagan signed the resolution into law. (Public Law 97-54).

The committee acted to extend the Federal Tort Claims provisions of Title 28 of the United States Code to acts or omissions of members of the National Guard during federal training. The legislation provides that the remedy under those provisions shall be exclusive in medical malpractice actions involving members of the National Guard. Under the bill, National Guard personnel are covered under the Federal Tort Claims provisions of Title 28 while they are engaged in federal training or duty to the same extent as their counterparts in the Army Reserve and the Air Force Reserve. The bill was signed by the President on December 29, 1981. (Public Law 97-124).

The committee adopted legislation providing for Congressional consent to the interstate compact between the States of North Carolina and South Carolina which establishes their lateral, seaward boundary. This compact was initiated in response to a need to delineate off-shore jurisdiction between the two states. It was developed in cooperation with officials of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration of the Department of Commerce. The text of the compact has been adopted by the legislatures of both states. The bill was signed by the President on October 9, 1981. (Public Law 97-59).

The committee also gave the consent of the Congress to the agreement between the states of Kansas and Missouri establishing their mutual boundary in the vicinity of the French Bottoms near St. Joseph, Missouri and Elwood, Kansas. A dispute had arisen as to the specifics of the boundary between the two states. In 1977, committees appointed by the legislatures of each state met and determined that the deep water line of the channel would constitute the boundary. Following the survey, the legislatures of both states approved the boundary as it was set forth in the compact. The bill was signed by the President on October 16, 1981. (Public Law 97-64).

The committee adopted a bill which recognizes the organization known as the Italian-American War Veterans. This organization is for honorably discharged veterans of World War I, World War II, the Korean conflict and the Vietnam conflict and for recipients of Congressional medals of the United States expeditions and campaigns. Though any veteran may join, most members are of Italian descent. The organization was founded in 1932 and has maintained a state charter since that date. The President signed the bill on November 20, 1981. (Public Law 97-82).

The committee also approved a bill to recognize the organization known as the United States Submarine Veterans of World War II. The organization was founded in 1955 as a patriotic association of veterans of the submarine service during the second World War. There are currently 5,000 active and associate members of the organization, with additional integrated organizations for wives, sons and daughters. The President signed the bill on November 20, 1981. (Public Law 97-83).

The committee received sequential referral on the Department of Defense Authorization bill for fiscal year 1982, insofar as that bill included language which modified Title 10 of the United States Code to clarify the level of cooperation permitted between the Department of Defense and civilian law enforcement authorities. This is known as the Posse Comitatus legislation. The conference committee report, which was eventually adopted by both houses and sent to the President, contained substantially the language which had been adopted by the Judiciary Committee. The net result of the legislation was a series of amendments to Title 10 to encourage greater cooperation between the military and civilian law enforcement officials. The President signed the bill on December 1, 1981. (Public Law 97-86).

EMANUEL CELLER

Chairman, 81st, 82d, 84th, 85th, 86th, 87th, 88th, 89th, 90th, 91st, and 92d Congresses

Emanuel Celler enjoys the distinction of having served as a member of the Judiciary Committee longer than any man in history, having been elected a member of the committee in the 71st Congress which convened on April 15, 1929. Mr. Celler was chairman continuously from the 81st Congress until the close of the 92d Congress, except for the 83d Congress when the Democrats were in the minority. This period of 22 years is longer than any other chairman of the committee on the Judiciary ever served and is a record not likely to ever be equalled.

Mr. Celler was Dean of the House, having a longer continuous record of public service (48 consecutive years) than any other member. No other chairman in the history of this country has to his credit the adoption of four constitutional amendments. These are:

The granting of the vote in presidential elections to the District of Columbia; the abolition of the poll tax in Federal elections; the filling of the constitutional gap in the matter of presidential inability; and the lowering of the voting age to 18 years, which was ratified as the 26th Amendment on July 1, 1971.

This is a high proportion when we consider that, excluding the Bill of Rights, only 16 constitutional amendments have ever passed the Congress.

A Democrat, Mr. Celler was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., May 16, 1888; attended the public schools; was graduated from the Boys' High School of Brooklyn in 1906, from Columbia College, New York City, in 1910, and from the Columbia University Law School, New York City, in 1912; admitted to the bar and commenced practice in New York City in 1912; author of "You Never Leave Brooklyn"; elected as a Democrat to the 68th Congress, November 7, 1922; reelected to each succeeding Congress through the 92d. Mr. Celler died on January 15, 1981.

PETER W. RODINO, JR.

Chairman, 93d, 94th, 95th, 96th, and 97th Congresses

Peter W. Rodino, Jr., was born in Newark, N.J., on June 7, 1909. He was admitted to the New Jersey Bar in 1937 after having received an LL.B from the New Jersey School of Law (which later became Rutgers) in the same year. After practicing law in Newark, Mr. Rodino was elected to the House of Representatives in 1948 from the 10th Congressional District of New Jersey. He is currently Chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and is Dean of the New Jersey Congressional Delegation.

Since his election to the Chairmanship in January of 1973, Mr. Rodino has presided over proceedings which have shaped the history of the United States. He directed the first Presidential impeachment inquiry in over 100 years and presided over the investigation and hearings with respect to the nominations for Vice President of Gerald Ford (the first pursuant to the 25th Amendment) and Nelson Rockefeller.

In 1970, the Judiciary Committee under Mr. Rodino's leadership considered and favorably acted on the first major antitrust legislation in 20 years, and a revision of the law of copyrights, the first in 67 years. In 93rd Congress, in 1977-78, the committee, under his direction, passed the first substantial revision of bankruptcy laws in 20th century; the Ethics in Government Act mandating financial disclosure requirements for officials in three branches of government; the Omnibus Judgeship bill adding 152 new federal judgeships across the nation; and the proposed Constitutional amendment to give residents of District of Columbia full voting rights in Congress. In the 96th Congress, in 1979-80, Mr. Rodino won enactment of Antitrust Procedural Improvements legislation; the act establishing a U.S. Court of International Trade responsible for all civil litigation arising from import transactions; and legislation to permit the Federal government to sue to protect the Constitutional rights of persons confined to institutions.

Chairman Rodino authored majority reports in 1937, 1960, 1964 and 1968 on civil rights legislation and was floor manager of the 1966 Civil Rights Bill; he cosponsored the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, establishing the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration; initiated and led a successful effort to cut off aid to nations which do not cooperate with the United States in curbing the flow of illicit narcotic drugs into the country (amendment to Foreign Assistance Act of 1971); was the prime sponsor of immigration legislation in 1965 eliminating national origins quotas as the basis of U.S. immigration policy and of the Refugee Act of 1980 which established a comprehensive policy for admitting and resettling refugees; and authored the Monday holiday bill making Columbus Day a national holiday.

Mr. Rodino is the present Chairman of the Monopolies and Commercial Law Subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee, and senior member of House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control; he is the former Chairman of the Immigration, Citizenship and International Law Subcommittee. Among those under final consideration by Governor Jimmy Carter as the Democratic Vice Presidential nominee in 1976, Mr. Rodino gave the principal nominating speech for Mr. Carter at the Democratic National Convention the same year. In June 1978, he was named by President Carter to serve on the National Commission for the Review of Antitrust Laws and Procedures. In March, 1979, he was appointed to Select Commission on Immigration and Refugee Policy.

In 1941, Mr. Rodino volunteered to serve in World War II and was commissioned overseas. He served in the North African and European Theaters of Operation with the 1st Armored Division and Military Mission attached to the Italian Army. He received the Bronze Star and other decorations, including several from the Republic of Italy. He was discharged as a captain in 1946.

He served as Congressional Observer to the Disarmament Conference in Geneva, 1958; as a delegate to the Intergovernmental Committee for European Migration (ICEM) Council dealing with refugee problems, 1962-1972, was elected its Chairman in 1971-72; as a delegate to the North Atlantic Assembly (parliamentary arm of NATO) since 1962 and was Chairman of its Scientific and Technical Committee in 1972 and the Working Group on the Control of Narcotics.

Chairman Rodino has received numerous and distinguished honors and awards. Internationally, he received the Humanitarian Award, International B'nai B'rith, 1975; the Italian Government's highest decoration, "Cavaliere di Gran Croce," Order of Merit of the Republic of Italy, 1970; the Special International Award, Pious Society of St. Charles (Scalabrini Fathers); was made a Knight Commander, Equestrian Order of St. Agatha, Republic of San Marino; received the Gold Medal of Knights of Lithuania; was decorated by the Free Polish Government; and named to Knighthood in 1945 by King Umberto of Italy.

Mr. Rodino, in addition, has received degrees as Honorary Doctor of Laws, Fairleigh Dickinson University, 1981; Honorary Doctor of Laws, Columbus School of Law, The Catholic University of America, 1981; Honorary Doctor of Laws, Potomac School of Law; 1979; Honorary Doctor of Laws, Cardozo Law School, Yeshiva University, 1979; Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters, Georgetown University, 1977; Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters, Jersey City State College, 1977; Honorary Doctor of Laws, Brooklyn Law School, 1976; Honorary Doctor of Laws, Princeton University, 1975; Honorary Doctor of Laws, New York Law School, 1975; Honorary Doctor of Laws, Rutgers University, 1975; Honorary Doctor of Laws, Lehigh University, 1975; Honorary Doctor of Civil Laws, St. John's University, 1974; Honorary Doctor of Laws, Seton Hall University, 1976; and Honorary Doctor of Humane Letters, Le Moyne College, 1974.

Mr. Rodino received the "Hubert H. Humphrey Civil Rights Award," Leadership Conference on Civil Rights, January 30, 1978; the Columbus Citizens Committee 1978, Excellence in Judiciary Award; the American Institute for Public Service Award, the "Jefferson Award," 1975; the Bicentennial Americanism Award, UNICO National, 1976; the "Special Award for Outstanding Public Service," at National Italian American Bicentennial Tribute Dinner, 1976; the Southern Christian Leadership Conference "Martin Luther King Award," 1975; the A. Philip Randolph Institute Award, 1975; the NAACP of Philadelphia, "One Nation Award," 1975; and the United HIAS Service "Liberty Award," 1975.

He received as well the Special Recognition Award for Congressional Leadership, American Justinian Society, 1974, Medal of Excellence for Distinguished Service, Federal Bar Association, 1974, and the American Judges Association "Glenn R. Winters Award," 1975. Chairman Rodino has also been the recipient of many awards and citations from veterans organizations, religious orders, civil rights organizations and fraternal organizations on the national and local levels.

Chairman Rodino was married to the former Marianna Stango for nearly forty years until her death in November 1980. He is the father of Margaret (Mrs. Charles Stanziale, Jr.) and Peter III, and grandfather of Carla and Maria Teresa Stanziale.

Appendix No. 8

RULES OF PROCEDURE OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY, 97TH CONGRESS—ADOPTED FEBRUARY 5, 1981

Rules I. The Rules of the House of Representatives are the rules of the Committee on the Judiciary and its subcommittees with the following specific additions thereto.

Rule II. Committee Meetings:

- (a) The regular meeting day of the Committee on the Judiciary for the conduct of its business shall be on Tuesday of each week while the Congress is in session.
- (b) Additional meetings may be called by the Chairman and a regular meeting of the Committee may be dispensed with when, in the judgment of the Chairman, there is no need therefor.
- (c) At least 24 hours (excluding Saturday, Sundays, and legal holidays) before each scheduled Committee or subcommittee meeting, each Member of the Committee or subcommittee shall be furnished a list of the bill(s) and subject(s) to be considered and/or acted upon at the meeting. Bills or subjects not listed shall be subject to a point of order unless their consideration is agreed to by a two-thirds vote of the Committee or subcommittee.
- (d) Committee and subcommittee meetings for the transaction of business, i.e., meetings other than those held for the purpose of taking testimony, shall be open to the public except when the Committee or subcommittee, by majority vote, determines, otherwise.
- (e) Every motion made to the Committee and entertained by the Chairman shall be reduced to writing upon the demand of any Member, and a copy made available to each Member present.
- (f) In all subcommittee proceedings where a vote on a motion to report a bill to the full Committee results in a tie, such bill shall be reported to the full Committee without recommendation.
- (g) For purposes of taking any action at a meeting of the full Committee or any subcommittee thereof, a quorum shall be constituted by the presence of not less than one-third of the Members of the Committee or subcommittee, except that a full majority of the Members of the Committee or subcommittee shall constitute a quorum for purposes of reporting a measure or recommendation from the Committee or subcommittee, closing a meeting to the public, or authorizing the issuance of a subpoena.
- (h) A complete transcript shall be made of any full Committee meeting, or any portion thereof, upon the request of any Member of the Committee made before the close of business of the preceding day, excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays.

Rule III. Hearings:

- (a) The Committee or any subcommittee shall make public announcement of the date, place and subject matter of any hearing to be conducted by it on any measure or matter at least 1 week before the commencement of that hearing, unless the Committee or the subcommittee before which such hearing is scheduled, determines that there is good cause to begin such hearing at an earlier date, in which event it shall make public announcement at the earliest possible date.
- (b) Committee and subcommittee hearings shall be open to the public except when the Committee or subcommittee, by majority vote, determines otherwise.
- (c) For purposes of taking testimony and receiving evidence before any subcommittee, a quorum shall be constituted by the presence of two Members. For purposes of taking testimony and receiving evidence before the full Committee, a quorum shall be constituted by the presence of 10 Members.

(d) In the course of any hearing each Member shall be allowed 5 minutes for the interrogation of a witness until such time as each Member who so desires has had an opportunity to question the witness.

Rule IV. Proxy Voting. A vote by any Member of the Committee with respect to any measure or matter being considered in the Committee or in subcommittee may be cast by proxy if the proxy authorization is in writing, asserts that the Member is absent on official business or is otherwise unable to be present at the meeting of the Committee, designates the person who is to execute the proxy authorization, and is limited to a specific measure or matter and any amendments or motion pertaining thereto; except that a Member may authorize a general proxy for motions to recess, adjourn or other procedural matters. Each proxy to be effective shall be signed by the Member assigning his or her vote and shall contain the date and time that the proxy is signed. Proxies may not be counted for a quorum.

Rule V. Broadcasting:

(a) Whenever any hearing or meeting conducted by the Committee or any subcommittee is open to the public, the Committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, may permit that hearing or meeting to be covered, in whole or in part, by television broadcast, radio broadcast, and still photography, or by any of such methods of coverage, under the following rules:

(1) If the television or radio coverage of the hearing or meeting is to be presented to the public as live coverage, that coverage shall be conducted and presented without commercial sponsorship.

(2) No witness served with a subpoena by the Committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, shall be required against his will to be photographed at any hearing or meeting or to give evidence or testimony while the broadcasting of that hearing or meeting, by radio or television, is being conducted. At the request of any such witness who does not wish to be subjected to radio, television, or still photography coverage, all lenses shall be covered and all microphones used for coverage turned off.

(3) Not more than four television cameras, operating from fixed positions, shall be permitted in a hearing room. The allocation among the television cameras permitted in a hearing room shall be in accordance with fair and equitable procedures devised by the Executive Committee of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(4) Television cameras shall be placed so as not to obstruct in any way the space between any witness giving evidence or testimony and any Member of the Committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, or the visibility of that witness and that Member to each other.

(5) Television cameras shall not be placed in positions which obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(6) Equipment necessary for coverage by the television and radio media shall not be installed in, or removed from, the hearing room while the Committee or subcommittee, as the case may be, is in session.

(7) Floodlights, spotlights, and flashguns shall not be used in providing any method of coverage of the hearing or meeting, except that the television media may install additional lighting in the hearing room, without cost to the Government, in order to raise the ambient lighting level in the hearing room to the lowest level necessary to provide adequate television coverage of the hearing at the then current state of the art of television coverage.

(8) Not more than five press photographers shall be permitted to cover a hearing or meeting by still photography. In the selection of these photographers, preference shall be to photographers from Associated Press Photos and United Press International Newspictures. If request is made by more than five of the media for coverage of the hearing by still photography, that coverage shall be made on the basis of a fair and equitable pool arrangement devised by the Standing Committee of Press Photographers.

(9) Photographers shall not position themselves, at any time during the course of the hearing or meeting, between the witness table and the Members of the Committee or subcommittee, as the case may be.

(10) Photographers shall not place themselves in positions which obstruct unnecessarily the coverage of the hearing or meeting by the other media.

(11) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media shall be then currently accredited to the Radio and Television Correspondents' Galleries.

(12) Personnel providing coverage by still photography shall be then currently accredited to the Press Photographers' Gallery.

(13) Personnel providing coverage by the television and radio media and by still photography shall conduct themselves and their coverage activities in an orderly and unobtrusive manner.

(b) Subcommittees may authorize the broadcasting or photographing of any of their public hearings or meetings without the specific permission of the Committee.

Rule VI. Standing Subcommittees. There shall be the following seven standing subcommittees of the Committee on the Judiciary as follows:

(a) Subcommittee on Immigration, Refugees, and International Law: Immigration and Naturalization, Citizenship, Admission of Refugees, Treaties and International Agreements, Passports, Admiralty, other appropriate matters as referred by the Chairman, and relevant oversight.

(b) Subcommittee on Administration Law and Governmental Relations: Administrative Law, Claims against the United States, other appropriate matters as referred by the Chairman, and relevant oversight.

(c) Subcommittee on Courts, Civil Liberties, and the Administration of Justice: U.S. Attorneys and U.S. Marshals, Courts, Judicial Ethics, Prisons, Paroles, Patents, Trademarks, Copyrights, other appropriate matters as referred by the Chairman, and relevant oversight.

(d) Subcommittee on Civil and Constitutional Rights: Civil Rights and Liberties, other appropriate matters as referred by the Chairman, and relevant oversight.

(e) Subcommittee on Monopolies and Commercial Law: Antitrust, Judge-ships, Bankruptcy, Economic Regulation generally, other appropriate matters as referred by the Chairman, and relevant oversight.

(f) Subcommittee on Crime: Prevention of Crime, Problems of Criminal Offenders, other appropriate matters as referred by the Chairman, and relevant oversight.

(g) Subcommittee on Criminal Justice: Federal Criminal Code, Rules of Criminal Procedure, Rules of Civil Procedure, other appropriate matters as referred by the Chairman, and relevant oversight.

Rule VII. Powers and Duties of Subcommittees. Each subcommittee is authorized to meet, hold hearings, receive evidence, and report to the full Committee on all matters referred to it or under its jurisdiction. Subcommittee chairmen shall set dates for hearings and meetings of their respective subcommittees after consultation with the chairman and other subcommittee chairmen with a view toward avoiding simultaneous scheduling of full Committee and subcommittee meetings or hearings whenever possible.

Rule VIII. Non-Legislative Reports. No report of the Committee or a subcommittee which does not accompany a measure or matter for consideration by the House shall be published unless all Members of the Committee or subcommittee issuing the report shall have been apprised of such report and been given the opportunity to give notice of intention to file supplemental, additional, or dissenting views as part of the report. In no case shall the time in which to file such views be less than three calendar days (excluding Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays).
